GERMANS CHECKED AT EVERY POINT

Allies Repulse All Attacks on Marne Battlefield; Enemy Loses Heavily

By International News Service.

Paris, June 5.—The Germans concentrated their heaviest pressure on the Marne front south of the Ourcq and have been delivering a series of powerful attacks around Chezy, but all were repulsed, the French War Office announced today.

In addition to gaining no ground, the Germans suffered very heavy losses.

Further north, on the borders of Villers Cotteret wood, the French attacked, supported by tanks, and rectified their lines.

North of the Aisne River the Germans have begun to bombard heavily.

A number of sharp German local attacks south of the Aisne were broken up by the French.

The text of the communique follows:

"Local attacks occurred last night on the northern border of Carlepont forest (between Noyon and Roisons), where the Germans twice tried to advance, but were thrown back by the French fire. Other attacks were delivered in the sectors of Autreches, east of Domineres and in the neighborhood of Corcy. All were repulsed. The French attacked, supported by tanks, to the north of Corcy and rectified their lines on the fringe of Villers-Cotteret wood.

"The Germans delivered powerful attacks south of the Ourcq River in the sector of Chezy and to the southwest, but all the assaults broke down with heavy losses.

"The artillery is active near Rheims and north of the Aisne."

U. S. NAVY READY TO DEAL WITH U-BOAT MENACE

An Atlantic Port, June 5.--Two more victims have been added to the German U-boat list in American coastal waters. They are the American auxiliary schooners Samuel G. Mengel, sunk Sunday by a submarine 175 miles south of Sandy Hook, and the American schooner Desauss, found floating off the Delaware Capes with a hole in her hull made by a torpedo. News of the sinking of the Mengel was brought here today when the Danish steamship Paris arrived from Central America with eleven survivors of the Mengel's crew. The fate of the crew of the Desauss is unknown.

By International News Service.

Washington, June 5.---The road to France will be kept open, no matter how many submarines Germany sends to this side of the Atlantic. High administration officials emphasized this fact today. Secretary Daniels said:

The great duty of the navy is to keep the road open to France in order to send men and supplies there and also food for our allies. That is a great task and will be accomplished.

The secretary would add nothing to his statement as to how the sea was to be kept clear. It is known, however, that the utmost precautions are being taken to deal with the submarines on this side. Officials are very hopeful that the steps now being taken will not only allow continuance of overseas movements but also will furnish adequate protection to coastwise and South American shipping.

A number of reports dealing with the submarine situation were received by the Navy Department today, but were not made public. It is understood that mine sweepers have located a number of mines off the entrance to certain American ports. Officials were inclined to believe that the U-boats carried mines in their

FIREMEN ASK PETERS FOR MORE PAY

A delegation of Boston firemen asked Mayor Peters today for increases in departmental pay amounting to an annual total of $326,300.

Mayor Peters told them he would "look into the matter."

He mentioned the increases already granted, amounting to more than $250,000 additional in the 1918 budget.

He also mentioned the one-day-off-in-three recently granted men of the Boston Fire Department.

The request for increase submitted to the Mayor began with the following paragraph:

This schedule was adopted by the International Fire Fighters' Association, Local No. 19, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The men cited as their reason—"The high cost of living."

Some of the increases asked are:

Commissioner—$5,000 to $7,500.

Chief—$4,500 to $6,000.

Deputies (two)—$3,500 to $4,500.

District Chiefs (fifteen)—$3,000 to $3,500.

SIX KILLED AS TRAINS CRASH IN TUNNEL

Burlington, Vt., June 5.—Six trainmen were killed and four others will die as the result of a head-on collision today between a mixed train and a wrecking engine on the Central Vermont Railroad in the tunnel under North avenue in this city.

A misunderstanding of orders caused the wreck.

The mixed train, containing several freight cars and a passenger car, was ordered to wait at Winooski until the wrecking engine had gone through the tunnel. The engines met on a single track in the dark tunnel. There was a panic among the sixty passengers on the train. None of them was hurt.

All the dead and injured were riding in or on the engines. The dead are:

ELI GRIFFIN, Burlington, engineer on wrecking engine.

FRED BENWAY, Burlington, fireman on same.

VICTOR COMPANION, Burlington, workman on same.

DEFENCE IN ROLLINS DEATH TRIAL OPENS

The government closed its case today in the trial of 19-year-old George E. Rollins for the murder of Ordway R. Hall, Dorchester tea store manager. The defence opened at the afternoon session. Before the government rested there was indication of an alibi defence. This came when the stenographic report was read of the police quizzing of Rollins when he was taken to headquarters after his arrest.

In this report was quoted a statement by Rollins that, on the night of the shooting of Hall, he was at the home of a girl friend in Dorchester.

Pratt and several other vessels were sunk just a few hours previous, the United Fruit Company's ship, the Saxolo, the first vessel to put into this port because of U-boat activities, docked here today. It had a passenger list of eighty-one and carried a crew of one hundred.

16 DROWN AS LIFEBOAT OF CAROLINA CAPSIZES DURING STORM

torpedo compartments instead of torpedoes, depending on bombs and gunfire to sink vessels.

The Navy Department announced that 255 survivors of the liner Carolina were landed in New York today.

Many officials here are convinced that there are at least half a dozen submarines on this side of the water and that the real reason for their visit is to strew floating mines in the path of shipping. There now is no doubt that the tanker Pratt struck a mine and was not torpedoed. So far as the records available here are concerned there is only one case yet reported, the Winneconne, in which the German submarine has used a torpedo.

Operations of German submarines off the American coast will have no effect upon war risk insurance of crews, vessels and cargoes.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo announced this today, in view of the numerous inquiries which have been received since the U-boats became active in home waters.

Insurance rates on masters, officers and crews of vessels engaged in traffic through the war zone abroad was reduced from 25 cents per $100 to 15 cents, it was further announced. A corresponding reduction has been made in similar rates applicable outside the war zone.

U-Boat Men, Armed Like Pirates, as Haskell's Crew Adrift; Schooner Shelled

Eight members of the crew of the schooner Jacob M. Haskell, bombed and sunk by a German submarine off Barnegat, reached Boston with the most thrilling story of adventure that has been heard on this side of the Atlantic since the war began.

The boarding of their craft by a crew of six German sailors, armed with long knives and wicked looking guns, and resembling in their appearance the pirates of four centuries ago, was graphically described by members of the crew, who declare they have all followed the sea for years, declare that they have never experienced any adventures more astonishing than those which followed the appearance of a submarine of the Imperial German navy off the New Jersey coast.

After the arrival of the eight seamen the crafts three others, the captain, second mate and cook, put in at an Atlantic port on board the motor launch in which the entire crew of eleven left the doomed schooner to seek a haven on the New Jersey coast.

The encounter of the Haskell with the submarine, the identity of which has not yet been made known, took place Sunday noon, just after eight bells had struck. Patrick O'Brien, a native Californian, who has been a seaman in the East for the last ten years, was at the wheel.

HEARD FOUR SHOTS.

"During the morning," he said "we had heard four shots. We paid no special heed to them, for we supposed that they were from the artillery testing at Sandy Hook or at some proving ground. At 12:15 Sunday noon I was at the wheel and the captain was below at lunch. He had just finished taking the latitude—we were then fifty miles off Barnegat."

The Haskell's commander is Captain William H. Davis of Everett. The cook, Joseph Tirrell, and Second Mate Raymond Fish came with code, were 'A' and 'B.' Captain Davis hustled downstairs to get his code book, and in it he read the meaning of the signal 'All'—'Abandon ship at once.' He ordered the men to lower the jibs, and the sails came down.

"Meanwhile a boat had put out from the big undersea boat. With the officer in charge were five men. The boat drew up alongside, we passed a rope down and the crew came up. All this time the submarine's two heavy guns were turned upon us. There wasn't the slightest chance for resistance and we should have been fools indeed had we attempted it.

"The Germans clambered quickly over the side. The young lieutenant in charge was full of business—German efficiency, I suppose.

"'Captain,' he said, 'we are going to sink your ship. I want your papers and your flag.'

WICKED LOOKING PISTOL.

"He carried the wickedest looking pistol I ever saw. It was half the length of my arm, and was attached at his right side not by a holster, as one ordinarily carries a gun, but to a board, something like a shingle. Probably leather is so scarce that they have adopted this means in Germany of substituting wood for it.

"Every one of his men was armed with the same kind of a gun and with long dirks.

"The captain didn't give them any talk. He promptly went below, and got all his papers. Afterward he surrendered our American flag. The lieutenant was positively greedy for papers. He seized upon all he could get—thinking, perhaps, that there might be some information among them that would help him in his destructive work.

"While the captain was below the German soldiers recorded swiftly to work planting bombs. They swung overboard the main sheet ropes and attached to them four bombs—one on either side of the bow and one on either side of the stern. The bombs were each about ten inches long. Of course, I had no idea how they were made.

"'Hurry up, hurry up; you've got just two minutes. There's no time to waste,' the lieutenant kept calling to us. He spoke good English.

"'Can't we take some water?' we asked him.

"'Take two buckets of water,' he replied. So we piled what we could pick up into the boat.

WERE SET ADRIFT.

"It happened that on Saturday we had taken everything out of it so that we could paint it—oars, sails water cask, food box and everything else. So we were rather up against it for conveniences. However, we put away a little corned beef, a can of milk, some bread and some salt fish with two buckets of water and started off. We hadn't even a spare piece of rope, for they cut the painter when we were once in the motor launch and set us adrift.

"Shortly afterward the submarine crew, who had been working like beavers, also left the Haskell. The U-boat was about 200 feet away from the schooner, I should say. We started our motor and headed for Barnegat at once. When we were about an eighth of a mile away we heard the bombs explode, and we all looked back; but as far as we could see the Haskell had not begun to settle.

"Evidently the Germans got tired of waiting for the boat to go down, for they promptly began banging away at it with their guns. They fired only a few times, and the Haskell sank in three or four minutes. The guns had tremendous power; one shot lifted the boiler used for hoisting cargo aboard as high as the masthead. Once the Haskell had been accounted for, the U-boat streaked it for the open sea."

HASKELL WITH THE COLE.

The Haskell was with the Edward Cole, which was also torpedoed, when they left Norfolk for Boston. The Cole was slightly in advance and in the haze Sunday the Haskell lost sight of the other schooner. The seamen on the two vessels were great friends and had counted upon a reunion in Boston. The Haskell's men thought the Cole had escaped until they reached port and learned what the U-boat had done. The four shots which O'Brien heard Sunday morning may have been fired at the Cole, it is believed.

"The Haskell was further off shore than usual," First Mate Gilliatt explained, discussing the coming of the U-boat. "That was because the wind was light, and we wanted to take advantage of it. Otherwise the U-boat probably would not have come across us. In fact, we almost stumbled upon its path."

Young Arlington Heroine Inspires Survivors

"I shall never forget the real heroine of the occasion. She was Miss Lilian Dickinson. Although we tried to discourage her, that gallant girl, who has just turned eighteen, insisted on taking her regular turn at the oars. It was a case of one hour on and one hour off.

"Miss Dickinson inspired us by her conduct. Just to look at that beautiful young woman, keeping pace with whatever the men did was enough to buoy our spirits and keep us going. In all we rowed between seventy and eighty miles. I know a lot of us would have given up had she not set the pace and the example. She was still taking her turn when we sighted Atlantic City."

Women's War Savings Drive Endorsed by Governor

Governor McCall today issued a statement urging hearty support for the women's 1,000,000-pledge war-savings drive. He said:

"I am pleased to add my word of endorsement on the work being done for 'The Woman's War Savings Service Drive to secure 1,00,000 pledges to buy War Savings Stamps regularly during 1918,' and urge on every man, woman and child in Massachusetts to heartily support this movement, and especially during the period from June seventh to June twenty-eighth.

The women of the Commonwealth have been true to the best traditions of Massachusetts womanhood and have given in full measure of their resources in the furtherance of the various forms of activity that have been helpful to the Federal government in this hour of its need.

By the purchase of War Savings Stamps we accomplish two things in that we are helping the National government in its prosecution of the war, and at the same time helping ourselves by encouraging thrift and making a secure investment. Our response to the appeal of the Women's War Savings Service should be prompt and generous.

TRAINS CRASH IN TUNNEL; SIX KILLED

FRANK ANDREWS, Burlington, engineer on mixed train.

HARRY SCOTT, Jeffersonville, Vt., fireman on same.

HENRY FOSTER, Essex Junction, Vt., brakeman on same.

The injured, all of whom are expected to die, were laborers on the wrecking engine. They are Frank Gerard, Edward Churchill, Gene Sinari and John Fitzsimonds, all of Burlington.

The men were crushed without warning. The engines met near the middle of the tunnel, which is about 300 feet long. Three of the men were riding on the cowcatcher of the engine. None of the men on or in the engines had any chance to escape. The tunnel was completely blocked by wreckage.

The dead men remained in the wreckage for several hours before their bodies could be removed. It was with difficulty that the injured were removed. They were taken to Lakeview Sanitarium, nearby, for first aid treatment, and later removed to Mary Fletcher Hospital.

The passenger car was on the end of the train and was near the Winooski exit of the tunnel when the engines collided. Although panic-stricken, the passengers escaped from the tunnel without much difficulty.

SHOTS HEARD BY PASSENGERS ON COLUMBUS

Steamship, Safe in Port, Changed Course After Warning of U-Boat

An Atlantic Port, June 5.—The steamship City of Columbus, which escaped the Kaiser's U-boats after receiving wireless warning, docked here today with fifty-one passengers, all thankful to land.

The passengers told stories of hearing five or six shots Sunday afternoon but they did not know at the time what the firing meant. Later it was rumored among the passengers that wireless warnings had been received. It was learned that the vessel's course had been changed. A decided increase in speed was noticed.

The steamship was ordered by a patrol boat yesterday to put into a port a few miles south of here, where it waited an hour before receiving orders to proceed. It reentered its run under convoy, which stayed by until near here.

Arriving in the lower harbor last night the City of Columbus was boarded by naval officers who conducted an inquiry for any information of U-boat activities that the vessel's officers might have.

The steamship docked at 11.03 today. The first passengers off were Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Hopkins of Belfast, Me., returning from their Winter home in Port Orange, Fla. Mrs. Hopkins said:

"Sunday afternoon, between 4 and 5, we heard six shots. The boat's course was quickly changed and it put on more speed. The same day we saw a life-preserver floating on the water. Passengers became somewhat excited at the sound of the shots, but could see nothing."

BOAT'S COURSE CHANGED.

S. C. Pennock of No. 54 Putnam street, Somerville, who was returning from Jacksonville, Fla., heard the shots. He added:

"Shortly before 5 o'clock Sunday evening the City of Columbus received wireless warning of U-boats. I suppose the warning came from Washington. Our course was changed."

Among those aboard were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Sweetser of Norwich and Mrs. Olive B. Nobbs and three-year-old daughter Flora Marie, wife and child of Lieutenant Nobbs, U. S. N.

SAW THREE HYDROPLANES.

Dr. and Mrs. Matthew A. Cummings of Winchester said that, when the City of Columbus was off Fire Island they saw three hydroplanes, by two of them traveling close to the steamship.

Arthur L. Hall of No. 41 Kingsdale street, Dorchester, was met at the dock by his sister. Mr. Hall is in the United State Marine Corps and was ordered to a Georgia station. There he was rejected for physical trouble. He returned home on the City of Columbus. His brother, Edward Everett Hall, is a warrant officer on one of the United States naval vessels, which was said to be out on the U-boat chase.

HARLOW FOR DEPUTY PRISON COMMISSIONER

George M. Harlow of Boston was today appointed Deputy Commissioner of Prisons by Commissioner Edward C. R. Bagley. The appointment will go to the Governor's Council on the question of confirming the salary at $3,000 a year. Mr. Harlow was assistant secretary to former Governor Foss and was appointed by him to the Harbor and Land Commission. He served as a member of the commission until it was abolished in 1916.

"Save Me From My Friends!"

RECENTLY a man came to Pray's, in response to an advertisement, and asked to be shown Karnak rugs. He found just the pattern he wanted. As he handed over his check he laughed and said, "Save me from my friends!"

Then he told a story similar to many others we have heard. An acquaintance who is employed in a Boston wholesale house whispered that he could save him a considerable sum on a Domestic rug by cutting off the retailer's profit. He went to see the rug. It was a Karnak. The price marked was $190. The price whispered was $130.

It looked good. But he did not bite that day. Then he was attracted by a Pray advertisement. He came here and purchased identically the same rug at our regular price—$92.75.

Is it any wonder he laughed when he said, "Save me from my friends"?

We relate this not so much as a reminiscence as a warning. If you will buy "discounts" be sure to get a big one. Better—enjoy the insurance of dealing with this hundred-year-old house.

SIXTEEN DROWNED AND 11 MISSING IN SINKING OF THE CAROLINA

THRILLING STORIES BY THE SURVIVORS OF PORTO RICAN LINER

By International News Service.

New York, June 5.—Sixteen men and women dead and eleven others missing is the toll taken by the German submarine which sank the Porto Rican liner Carolina, according to latest available reports today.

Captain Barbour of the Carolina, with 254 passengers and members of the crew of the sunken vessel, arrived here this morning aboard the American schooner Eva B. Douglas. In addition to the survivors landed, seventeen men, two women and one member of the ship's crew were accounted for at Lewes, Del., and twenty-nine at Atlantic City. Eight sailors of the Carolina were saved by the coast patrol in the vicinity of Barnegat inlet.

LOST WHEN BOAT CAPSIZED.

The sixteen known dead were lost in the capsizing of the motor lifeboat from which nineteen were later rescued and landed at Lewes, Del. The sixteen were unable to cling to the overturned craft as did the nineteen who were saved later.

In compliance with a request by wireless from Captain Barbour, the officials of the Porto Rico line dispatched a tug down the coast to meet the Eva B. Douglas late yesterday and she was brought to this port in tow early today, while the wharves for blocks around her pier were closed and United States troopers with fixed bayonets held a curious crowd of relatives and spectators at bay. Friends and relatives of the survivors were held back from the pier until most of the survivors had been permitted to leave.

Preparation had been made for the arrival of the passengers and crew of the sunken liner by the Red Cross and the Women's Motor Corps. Clothing, food and medicinal supplies were waiting at the pier where the Eva B. Douglas docked, but little help was needed by many of the survivors except for clothing.

Many of the survivors told of their experiences in the open sea and of the attack and sinking of the Carolina by the hostile U-boat. For the most part their stories of the sinking agree in all important details.

SHOT FIRED ACROSS BOW

According to their stories the Carolina was attacked shortly after 6 o'clock at night. The passengers were in the dining saloon at the time, and had just finished a fire drill, when a shot was fired across the bow of the steamer.

Shortly afterward a shrapnel shell exploded above the vessel in the vicinity of the wireless operator's quarters and a final shot across the stern brought the big vessel to a halt.

Captain Barbour had changed the course of the vessel and put on full steam, heading toward shore after the wireless operator had received word that a hostile submarine was in the zone. The big vessel had scarcely changed her course before the attacking U-boat rose to the surface and circled around her. It was then that firing began.

HEARD THE WILEY CALL.

E. W. Vogel, chief wireless operator on the sunken steamer, told of receiving an S. O. S. call from the Isabella B. Wiley, being shelled by a submarine, and giving her location. After informing Captain Barbour, who ordered full steam ahead and a change of course, Vogel told of going to the dining saloon while his assistant held the post in the wireless room.

"Shortly after I entered the dining room I heard a shot and immediately hurried to the wireless room, sending Werner, my assistant, to take the position of the ship.

"I then grabbed the key and sent out an S. O. S. call. My message read:

"'Carolina being gunned by German submarine.'

"A few moments later I got an answer from Cape May and almost simultaneously one came from the submarine.

"'Stop using your wireless and we won't shoot,' came the warning.

SUNK HIS CODE BOOK.

"Despite this warning I sent out another call for help and in answer there came a shot. I sent word to the captain asking for orders and just then the Brooklyn Navy Yard inquired our position. I did not give it as the captain ordered me to stop. For every time I sent out a call we received a shot, and with women and children aboard we simply had to surrender.

"I left the ship with Captain Barbour and the first officer after the ten boats had been lowered, but before leaving I tore up our code book and tossed it overboard, weighing down the pieces to make them sink."

Ernest C. Cox of Washington, D. C., who has been doing government work in Porto Rico, was one of the survivors who told of the sinking.

"Most of the passengers were in the dining saloon when the attack was made," said Cox. "A few of us were having a card game.

"Suddenly, without warning, a shell passed across the bow of the vessel, and this was followed by a bursting shrapnel shell above the liner. Neither did any damage. The U-boat circled around the steamer, but none of her officers put out in a boat and none came aboard.

BURNING AS SHE SANK.

"All of the boats were lowered and filled in good order and plenty of time was allowed to get the passengers and crew off before the German commander began circling her again and pouring shells into her on both sides. She did not sink for nearly an hour, and when she went down she was burning. The Germans did not get any of Captain Barbour's papers.

"I got a good view of the submarine. She looked about 300 feet long and she carried two guns."

Lieutenant F. D. A. Carpenter, U. S. R., who was returning from a Porto Rican training camp on furlough to his home at Basking Ridge, N. J., told of the wonderful coolness of the passengers and crew.

"The U-boat commander gave us all a good chance to get free of the vessel," said Lieutenant Carpenter, though he fired once to warn our wireless operator against sending out any information.

"There were ten boats on the Carolina, five on each side, and they were all lowered safely. This was about 6:15 o'clock Sunday night and it was still light enough to see everything that went on.

COURAGE DISPLAYED.

"The loading of the boats and the conduct of the passengers and crew bespoke courage and bravery. The women passengers did not go into hysterics except in one or two cases and these were soon quieted. Altogether we were in the open sea about twenty hours, and were picked up by the schooner Monday about midday, I think."

W. T. Woodsbridge of Montclair, N. J., said that after launching the five boats on either side of the Carolina they became separated for a time, but that later three of the boats joined five in which party he was rescued by the Eva B. Douglas.

"The submarine had two six-inch brass guns on her decks," said Woodsbridge, "and the deck proper appeared to be about 150 feet long."

Many of the passengers told of the lashing together of seven of the lifeboats with ropes. The boats were kept a distance apart in this way yet could not become separated. Early Sunday morning the drifting lifeboats were caught in the midst of a brisk squall and a treacherous sea, and for a time it appeared that all must be sunk. During the squall the survivors exhibited great coolness.

Among the survivors were a number of United States army officers who identified themselves as Lieutenant J. P. O'Toole, Clinton, Mass.; Lieutenant Leslie W. Arthur, Boston, Mass., and Lieutenant William Redding, Providence, R. I. Among other survivors was Harry Warner, wireless operator, of Bridgeport, Ct.

SANG "STAR SPANGLED BANNER."

Lieutenant J. P. O'Toole of Clinton, Mass., took several photographs of the submarine which sank the Carolina and also several snapshots of the vessel as she was sinking, but they were mising when he docked here today and he believes them to have been stolen from him last night as he lay asleep on the deck of the Eva B. Douglas.

"The submarine which sank our ship flew the German flag and there were 30 or 40 men on her decks when she drew close to us," he said. "All wore oil skins. Whether or not she was the U-151 I do not know, as she had no marks of identification that I could see.

"As the passengers were being loaded in the boats they sang and whistled the 'Star-Spangled Banner,' evidently much to the disgust of the U-boat crew."

AMERICANS NOW FIGHTING ON MANY FRONTS IN FRANCE

American troops now fighting with the French in the defence of Paris have helped to hurl the Germans back across the Marne. Other American forces have cleared the forest of Neuilly of Germans. The American flags at various portions of the battlefront in the map show where American troops are holding the line. Besides holding sectors on the front of the present drive, they are fighting at Cantigny, in Picardy; in Flanders and in Lorraine. The photograph merging into the map shows American 75's coming up to the battle line to halt the German rush.

YANKEE TROOPS INFLICT HEAVY LOSS ON FOE

Hundreds of Germans Fall Before U. S. Machine Gun Fire on Marne

By NEWTON C. PARKE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, June 5.—The most savage fighting in which the Americans have taken part since their arrival in France took place at Neuilly Wood (north of Chateau Thierry) on the Aisne-Marne battle front.

The Americans delivered a brilliant counter attack against the Germans, engaging the enemy in hand-to-hand fighting amidst the tangled piles of stumps that had been uprooted by the artillery fire.

The Americans swept the Germans back from the northern fringe of the wood and here proved themselves adepts with the bayonet.

Charging into the gray ranks of the Boches, the Americans broke up first one group and then another, heedless of the machine gun fire directed against them.

OCCUPIED HIGH GROUND.

Our troops were rushed into the battle at a high rate of speed as the Germans were pressing forward on the Marne. Machine gunners were jammed into huge motor trucks that whirled along the dusty roads throughout Friday night, passing long rows of refugees. They pushed on past trains of artillery and arrived in the battle zone early in a certain morning.

They took up their positions in shell-wrecked buildings, in fields and everywhere that offered an opportunity, pouring out streams of lead from their machine guns into the ranks of the enemy. The Americans had the advantage of occupying higher ground than the attacking Boches.

When the Germans reached the outskirts of Chateau Thierry the allied artillery severely pounded their machine gunners, compelling them to take up new positions.

HUNDREDS SLAUGHTERED.

The Americans entered the fighting first near Chateau Thierry and blocked the German attempts to gain a lodgment on the southern bank of the Marne. Hundreds of Boches were slaughtered by machine-gun fire as they tried to force a crossing and hold it.

Comparatively few of the Germans in the battalion that crossed the Marne near Jaulgonne escaped death or capture. When the French and Americans counter attacked a large number of the Germans were surrounded. Others fell beneath the withering blasts of machine-gun fire or in the hand-to-hand fighting which developed.

American Red Cross units have been continually in action on the Marne front, establishing countless canteens and aiding the refugees and wounded. The fact that our soldiers were actually engaged in the fighting on the Marne was released by the censor after the information was given out in Tuesday's French war office communique.

DRIVE HUNS BACK A MILE.

American infantry on the Lorraine front successfully attacked the Germans Monday morning, forcing them to retreat a mile and capturing some prisoners. Our losses in this fighting were comparatively light, although the Americans suffered somewhat from shell fire.

A small American patrol in the Luneville sector encountered a German patrol of seventeen men and a fight followed. Grenades, pistols and bayonets were used, three of the Germans being killed. Another American patrol penetrated to an enmy observation post, blowing it up.

There has been unusually heavy artillery fire on the Lorraine front for the past five days, the Germans throwing over several times the normal number of shells.

Most of them are "seventy-fives" and "one hundred and fives." There were some gas shells among them, too. In addition to the growing artillery there is great aerial activity. There have been numerous sky combats despite squally weather.

German Airmen Bomb Women Refugees From Marne

Paris, June 5.—German airmen, flying over the roads leading from the Marne battle front, are dropping bombs and firing with maching guns upon the crowds of refugees that are fleeing from the scene of the fighting. Many civilians have fallen victims to this new phase of Hun brutality.

Refugees from the invaded districts continue to pour into Paris and unfold tales of horror. They declare that the Uhlans ejected all the villagers from occupied territory, refusing to take any prisoners. The fugitive swarms are made up of old men and women and children.

AVIATORS FLY LOW TO STRIKE GERMANS

By International News Service.

Paris, June 5. — American and French aviators are engaging in low altitude attacks against the Germans, flying only 60 feet above the targets of attack.

The Lafayette escadrille dispersed an artillery column by circling over it and pouring in hot machine gun fire. It was a veritable "Custer's massacre."

A French aviator, who was in the hospital with a splintered rib, learning that the Germans were near, got up from his bed, motored to the aerodrome, where he demanded a pilot and a machine.

He soared aloft and attacked an enemy machine. The German pilot was killed by machine gun fire and his plane fell.

The Frenchman was decorated with the insignia of the Legion of Honor.

A story was received today about a British ambulance train bound for the rear that was captured and forced to turn about. The leading chauffeur protested at the condition of the road and when he got an opportunity he killed the guard. Then the whole train dashed through the German lines and escaped, a French column completing the rescue.

Terrible fighting took place between German and French flame-throwers in the subterranean passages at Fort Pompelle (northeast of Rheims). The Germans were routed after advancing over piled-up German bodies which they first incinerated with their flame-throwers.

MARINES FIRST TO SHARE GLORY AT MARNE

BY BERT FORD.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the French Battlefront, June 4 (Delayed) —The American infantry gave a splendid account of itself in the fighting on the Marne battlefield.

The chief glory in the opening encounters goes to the marines. In the first day they smashed six German counter-attacks and one on the following night. It was an inspiring sight to see the Americans marching up the hill, their tanned faces lighted by the glow of certain victory and a look of fearlessness in every eye. On through the shell-raked roads they passed, establishing themselves on ground made historic by the first battle of the Marne, nearly four years ago.

A larger number of Americans are engaged in this fighting than in any other engagement since America entered the war.

GIVE GERMANS FULL MEASURE.

France was still singing the praise of the American success at Cantigny when news came that the Yankees were upon the firing line between Soissons and Rheims, helping the French to stem the German rush southward. Then the Cantigny victory was overshadowed.

Our troops first took up a position to support the French line on the (deleted) front. Then when an opportune time came they took up a stronger position on a ridge. They had hardly arrived when the Boches opened up, but the Germans got more than they bargained for.

A lieutenant commanding a machine gun unit was so ambitious that he and his men were cut off for a while from their companions. But finally a way was opened through the German line. Other parts of the same machine gun outfit stationed near the Marne bridge paved the way by taking a valuable hill and decimating a German machine gun battalion.

CHEERED BY REFUGEES.

The hike of our troops to the battle zone carried them over rolling country and through picturesque valleys. The German push was so strong and so sudden that it carried them across freshly planted fields and thriving vineyards. Many civilians who were confident that the French would be able to hold up the Boche drive remained in their homes until shells began falling in the fields, killing their live stock.

As our troops passed hundreds of refugees with carts piled high with furniture cheered. Some were pushing wheelbarrows and others baby carriages. Still others carried the scant family treasures in small parcels.

The refugees slept in the open in constant dread of bombs from German airplanes. Whole families were seen sobbing bitterly over the loss of their homes, but when the long ranks of the sturdy young Americans swept by tears gave way to smiles and melancholy to bursts of cheers.

WOMEN KISS WOUNDED.

I saw one bent old woman, who must have been close to 90, and a man even older, alone in a deserted village, while the shells were screaming overhead.

Two American women Red Cross workers, did valiant service in the battle zone. They were Mrs. Herbert O. Squire and Mary Hoyt Weyberg, both of New York city.

A feature that gives the American success at the Marne greater prominence and insures their prestige as fighters is the love and esteem of the French populace. Women kissed the wounded who were being borne to the rear on litters. Men and children joined in the ovation.

Our men found the new territory devoid of dugouts and trenches, which forced the Germans to open fighting. This was hailed by the Americans. On the front lines are shallow breastworks or ditches which are deep enough to enable the men to escape snipers' bullets and machine gun fire.

There was indifferent cannonading today.

DONKEY MASCOT IN BATTLE.

The donkey mascot of an artillery regiment, named "Jazbo," a relic of Mexico, was walked into the battle with a white peony fastened to his right ear. He followed the men like a dog. Another outfit had a big anteater from Haiti as a mascot. It got its baptism of fire along with the donkey. Both got through unhurt.

The doughboys are great for pets. There are dogs, kittens and goats almost in the front line.

SHIPPING RULES DURING U-BOAT CAMPAIGN

Instructions concerning the routing of ships during submarine operations on the Atlantic coast, and relative to entering and leaving Boston harbor while the port is closed, have been issued by Admiral Wood, Commandant of the First Naval District, as follows:

The gate in the net where such exists will be closed from 8 p. m. to 4.30 a. m.

All fishing vessels and coastwise traffic will proceed as usual, but will be given latest information as to routing daily.

All overseas shipping will wait instructions from Washington.

Section commander will notify all army officers in command of forts, collectors of customs, etc.

Steamers of 16 knots and above coming through the canal will not require any convoy. Slow vessels and tugs with tows, through the canal will be convoyed. Slow vessels outside will be convoyed from Boston to the entrance to the Shoals. Vessels bound down east will be routed to make, as far as possible, a run from Boston by night.

Section commanders will keep in touch with all shipping entering harbors. When a vessel desires to sail for any other than the coasting route, the section commander will report to the commandant, first naval district, name of the vessel, nationality, when she desires to sail and for what port and orders will be given by the Commandant for the sailing of that vessel.

Section commanders will see that the information contained in these instructions is given all publicity, including publication in all newspapers.

Gotham Instructed What to Do in Case of an Air Raid

By International News Service.

New York, June 5.—Police Commissioner Enright has issued instructions to the people of the city how to act in case of an air raid. The order follows:

"The police department desires to notify all residents of the city through the press that in the event of a raid on this city by enemy aeroplanes, the following signals will be given:

"Siren horns or whistles will be sounded continuously for ten minutes.

"When this signal is given every one should immediately open the windows of their homes or offices and go at once to the cellar of the premises.

"After the danger has passed a signal will be given by short blasts of siren horns or whistles at intervals of one minute for a period of twenty minutes."

FAILED TO REGISTER, IS SENT TO CAMP DEVENS

James F. Mitchell, charged with failing to register for the selective draft at Olneyville, R. I., who enlisted in the United States Merchant Marine about two weeks ago, was arrested by an agent of the Department of Justice in Charlestown today, and after arraignment at the Federal building was taken to Camp Devens, where he was inducted into the National Army.

ENTERTAIN SEAMEN WHO HELPED TO SAVE COBB

Because they turned stokers and helped coal ship, 200 apprentices on the shipping board's training ship Governor Cobb, which safely ran the U-boat gauntlet off the Jersey coast and came into her pier today, will be guests of Charles Collens at a vaudeville show provided by the Boston Society of Architects on board the vessel tonight.

ARLINGTON GIRL HEROINE IN LINER'S BOAT

The real heroine of the steamship Carolina was Miss Lillian Dickinson of Arlington.

The bravery of this Greater Boston girl, who was on her way home from driving an automobile ambulance in France, was emphasized in the accounts of the dreadful experiences of a boat load of twenty-eight survivors from the Carolina, who rowed eighty miles in an open boat to Atlantic City after the Carolina had ben sunk by a U-boat.

This plucky girl of eighteen years took her turns at the heavy oars with the men.

The perilous trip lasted from 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon until 2 o'clock yesterday, a total of forty-four hours.

TOOK HER TURN AT OARS.

Miss Dickinson's fellow-passengers gave highest praise to her for her inspiring example of courage and fortitude.

Samuel Johnson of No. 4,080 Jerome avenue, Woodside, New York, who was in the boat with Miss Dickinson, is quoted in Atlantic City dispatches today as follows:

"I shall never forget the real heroine of the occasion. She was Miss Lillian Dickinson of Arlington, Mass.

"Although we tried to dissuade her, that gallant girl, who has just turned eighteen years, insisted on taking her regular turn at the oars. It was a case of one hour on and one hour off.

"Miss Dickinson by her conduct inspired us all. Just to look at that beautiful young woman keeping pace with whatever the men did was enough to buoy up our spirits and keep us going.

"In all we rowed between seventy-eight and eighty miles. I know that a lot of us would have given up had she not continued to set the pace and the example.

"She was still taking her turn and was actually at the oars when we sighted Atlantic City."

British Capture Prisoners in Raids Near Lens and La Bassee

By International News Service.

London, June 5.—German artillery was active last night north of the Scarpe and Lys Rivers, and in the sectors of Merris and the Ypres-Comines Canal, the British War Office reported today.

The British made successful raids near Lens and La Bassee Canal, capturing some prisoners. The Germans tried to raid British trenches near Morlancourt, supported by a strong bombardment, but were driven off.

The text of the official report follows:

"A few prisoners were captured by us last night as the result of successful raiding operations near Lens and south of La Bassee Canal.

"The Germans tried to raid our lines southwest of Morlancourt this morning, supported by a heavy bombardment, but were repulsed. Some prisoners were left in our hands.

"Hostile artillery was active during the night north of the Scarpe and Lys Rivers, and near Merris and the Ypres-Comines Canal."

HUN PRISONERS RETURNED BY RUSSIA

By JOHN McHUGH STUART,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service

Washington, June 5.—With the announcement by the State Department that between 1,200 and 2,000 German prisoners of war are daily being returned to the Fatherland from Russia, Siberian intervention loomed large in Washington. The State Department also announced that it had received confirmation of the agreement between Russia, Finland and Germany whereby Germany gets access to the Arctic ocean via the Mourmankh peninsula.

Word came here from London that developments in Tokio and Tientsin warranted belief in early action in Siberia. This news was received without surprise in Allied diplomatic circles here, though the State Department declared that it had no definite information about the developments in the Far East.

The construction placed upon the news in Allied diplomatic quarters is that the Entente has come to the conclusion that intervention is the only thing that can prevent Germany reaping all the benefits of her Russian conquests without disturbance.

It is pointed out that if an allied column should start through Siberia, it would at least deter the return to the German ranks of the thousands of prisoners of war who are still in Russia and Siberia.

The Department received its news with regard to the return of these prisoners from Moscow, via Stockholm. The dispatch states that three trains a day are being run into Germany, each train bearing from 600 to 1,000 men, through the border city of Oraha.

HUN LONG-RANGE GUN IS OF A NEW MODEL

By International News Service.

London, June 5 (by British wireless service).—The German long-range gun now bombarding Paris appears to be a new model. Paris correspondents say the calibre of the shell is three centimeters larger than that of the shell fired by the three guns destroyed by the French artillery. The powder charge also is bigger. The firing is somewhat erratic.

The safety of children is the chief concern of the Paris authorities. School teachers have received instructions for the safety of their wards. A thousand children already have been sent into a southern department.

SAYS DRY DOCK MAY BE LOST TO BOSTON

Martin Declares Its Control by Private Interests Would Retard Port Development

"Boston and Massachusetts are in danger of losing their greatest asset through unwise legislation affecting the new $3,000,000 drydock under course of construction in Boston harbor," said John J. Martin, president of the Exchange Trust Company, in an address before the members of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

"The action of the Senate and House last week," continued Mr. Martin, "furnishes conclusive proof that the New York financial clique, responsible for the wrecking of New England's transportation system and the throttling of port development at Boston, is still in control of the destinies of New England. There exists a bold plot to present to a private corporation the one state enterprise upon which the future of the Commonwealth depends—the $3,000,000 drydock.

"The fact that work on the drydock has been held up for months suggests ground for believing that the scheme included retaining the contractors at present engaged on the work from their bargain with the State. While the contract calls for completion August 1, the work is, I am told, but 40 per cent. completed and eleven months behind.

DRYDOCK A FACTOR.

"Our present national shipping plans promises to give the United States the greatest merchant marine in the world within the next few years. The Boston drydock will be a factor in these plans. American-owned ships will dock here and the revenue to this port will be enormous. It would be criminal folly to turn the drydock over to private interests when its control will mean profits running into the millions. And, added to returns for work done on vessels, there will be enormous sums expended through the increased activity of the port.

"To turn the drydock over to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, or to any other private control, would tighten the grip of New York railroad and financial interests on our transportation system. It would compel Boston to face the greatest opportunity in her history for building up the trade of the port without equipment or power to benefit.

"The future not only of Boston and of Massachusetts but of all New England is involved in this deal to cripple the development of the port.

"The jamming of the dry dock bill through the legislature in the last hour of the session leads one to believe that this port is still the plaything of a financial clique that regards the wealth and energy of New England's 7,000,000 people as its legitimate spoil.

NEVER HAD SQUARE DEAL.

"Boston has never had a square deal. The handicap of differential rates in favor of Baltimore and Philadelphia has offset our efforts at building up export trade at this port.

"Improving our port facilities is recognized as the only means we have of fighting this unjust discrimination. Yet within the past few weeks we have seen a desperate effort made to present our drydock to New York interests. Let us see that this plot does not succeed.

"There is no reason for pessimism. The Government has an enormous stake in New England. In duties collected at the port of Boston and in Federal income and corporation taxes, Massachusetts will for the future contribute upwards of $35,000,000 annually to Federal revenues.

"The $3,000,000 investment at South Boston makes the government vitally interested in the future of the port. It represents the most important commercial development ever undertaken at Boston. It will provide the port with an unparalleled equipment for handling future business and act as an attraction to new industries. It is not merely a war project. It represents a national equipment for use in the great post-war trade struggle that is coming. Edward N. Hurley of the Shipping Board made that clear in his statement that our terminals, now far from adequate, must be equipped and developed against the time when we shall be adding 5,000,000 tons a year to the American Merchant Fleet.

"Our success in securing South Boston development against the opposition of New York suggests a way to end domination of this port by New York railroad interests. We must organize at every point to secure the fullest possible advantage of the Federal government's interest in the future of this port. Port development at Boston should be the chief purpose of the State. It is a work calling for complete co-operation of all public and private forces.

"All the forces of New England and the influence of her representatives in Congress should be lined up to fight the Albany schemes for keeping Boston bottled up.

"The South Boston development should be used in urging a 'Free Zone' at the port of Boston along the lines of the present proposal of the United States Tariff Commission. The Allies war plans with regard to transportation from this country should be used to bring about the entrance into Boston of the Grand Trunk or other roads. Existing conditions suggest ideal opportunities for promoting closer relations with Canada and for the development of Canadian traffic through the port of Boston.

"By all means, give the Government the use of the drydock for the duration of the war but see to it that after the war it does not fall into the hands of private interests, who would use it only for their own personal gain."

Providence, R. I., June 5.—A counterfeiting gang has been exposed by Abraham Ellison, alias Coppicon, who is held in $10,000 bail, charged with passing raised currency. ## Clemenceau Shames Critics by Recital of Army's Deeds

By International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 5.—In the midst of a heated session, Premier Clemenceau, mounted the tribune of the Chamber of Deputies, shamed the interrupting Socialists into silence and then aroused them to frantic cheering when he declared that France's poilus had been fighting against odds of five to one, without sleep for four days, displaying superhuman heroism.

Wild scenes of patriotic exaltation followed The Premier, the army, Foch and Joffre were all acclaimed by thunderous ovations.

The Socialists, who at first had attempted to prevent Clemenceau from speaking, demanding impossible explanations, joined heartily in the cheering and shouted as loud as the others, "Vive la France!"

The Premier admitted the situation was serious, but expressed unbounded faith in the future and absolute confidence in the war chiefs.

The Chamber of Deputies voted confidence in the government.

Navy No Place to Find Soft Jobs, Asserts Admiral Wood

Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commanding the First Naval District, is out with a strong rebuke against those who are enlisting in the navy for "soft," non-hazardous jobs.

"Parents are writing about their sons, asking soft, non-hazardous positions for them," he said.

"The navy is no place for young men who seek only share duty. The navy wants men of action. When a mother writes to me about her son seeking a position which is non-hazardous, I feel like writing to that mother more than I can. I think I know how many mothers feel about their sons, but no one must give way to mere sentiment."

"Why don't I get a Filene package"

THE MOTHER of one of the boys with the American Expeditionary Forces dropped in the other day to leave an order for a package to be sent to her son in France.

She told us that she did so because he had written in one of his letters, "Why don't I get one of those Filene packages? Nearly all the boys in the company have received them."

Like so many other regiments and units, the boys had learned to await the Filene package from Paris; learned that the Filene package was the standard.

Perhaps YOU have a soldier somewhere in France, who is straining his eye for a package or a gift from you. It would go far toward relieving homesickness.

We shall be glad to send any soldier in France practically anything you may name from our Paris office. If you are in a hurry, we'll cable and it will be on its way quickly.

May Come Back Home to Visit "Own" Grave

There is a possibility that John O'Toole of West Roxbury may visit Calvary Cemetery to see where his brother buried him two weeks ago.

Ever since the war began, John, who had lived at No. 8 Claxton road, West Roxbury, when he is in Boston, has been traveling around the country as a munition worker.

He went to one place and, if he heard they paid more in another he went there. His family was often unaware of his whereabouts. Two weeks ago, though, they received word that he had been burned to death in a fire in Watertown, N. Y.

His brother, Frank, who is a fireman in West Roxbury, and a sister from Rochester, Mrs. Mary G. McIsaacs, went to that town and identified the body as far as it was possible to do so. They brought the remains back to Boston and buried them with the usual ceremony.

Yesterday, Frank got a wire from his brother in Rochester. It was to this effect: "You buried somebody, but you didn't bury me."

DRAFTEE'S WIFE HAS OFFICIAL ARRESTED

Leads Accused Brooklyn Board Clerk Into Arms of Law

By International News Service.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 5.—Patriotism and personal resentment of an insult caused a young married woman to act as a government detective. She brought about the arrest of John B. Shaw, a wealthy contractor and chief clerk of the local draft exemption board No. 65, with offices at No. 852 St. John's place. He has a wife and two grown daughters.

Shaw was arrested and held in $10,000 bond by U. S. Commissioner Reifsnyder. It is charged he violated the Selective Service law by agreeing to have the husband of the woman detective transferred from Class 2 to Class 4 if she would permit him to make love to her.

The name of the young woman who caused Shaw's arrest has not been revealed. She is an invalid. She went to the draft board and asked Shaw, she testified, if he could arrange it so her husband would not be called, as she was too ill to work, and her husband was her sole support. In a statement to Department of Justice Agent George P. Putnam she asserted:

"Shaw called me over to a desk, and what he said to me was shocking. I realized it was a chance for me to do patriotic service and I told him I would see him again and I came to you."

"Go ahead," said Agent Putnam. "Carry the thing out; arrange a meeting with him."

The woman did as she was instructed. She called Shaw up on a wire which has been tapped by the Department of Justice agents. Shaw asked her to come to his office. The woman said:

"If I come up there can you promise faithfully you will get my husband in the fourth class?"

Shaw is alleged to have replied: "I promise you faithfuly. The thing is working fine now. I have got it all fixed."

The woman then invited Shaw to come to her home. Shaw kept the appointment. In the room were secreted several department officials, a stenographer and the woman's husband. As Shaw was about to leave the room he was arrested.

The automobile struck him and inflicted such injuries that he died a few minutes later in the office of the American Felt Company.

The driver of the car, Mrs. May L. Clarke of No. 70 Wellington Hill street, Mattapan, was arrested on the technical charge of manslaughter and released in $1,000.

THOUSANDS, NEWLY OF AGE, REGISTER FOR DRAFT IN BOSTON

Signing up for the draft at Division Eight headquarters, No. 1 Beacon street. Left to right—Herbert M. Leighton, a traveling salesman of Southwest Harbor, Me.; Israel Ruby, clerk of the board, and Edward Graves of No. 414 Newbury street, Boston.

Young men to the number of several thousand today registered for military service in Boston under the provisions of the conscription law recently enacted by Congress. By the terms of the act all male citizens of the United States who have attained the age of twenty-one years since National Registration Day, June 5, 1917, are obliged to register for military service under penalty of a year's imprisonment and the loss of valuable rights.

The business of registering all applicants was taken care of by the respective division draft boards with the assistance of volunteer registration clerks. Boston expected to register 7,600 or more men by tonight, as City Hall records show that that number of Boston born young men should have reached their majority during the past year.

HALF ENROLLED AT NOON.

Many out-of-town salesmen and visitors who were unable to return to their home towns for various reasons registered at the nearest division draft board and received the little gray cards which are to be their badge of honor in the years to come.

In many districts men were in waiting when the doors opened and several hundred registered soon after. By noon approximately one-half of the total number expected had filled out the blanks and been enrolled.

Throughout the nation 800,000 young men who have reached their 21st birthday during the year are expected to be placed on call for the nation's service.

The work of registration in Boston went forward without a hitch, although special policemen were stationed at all places of registration to guard against disorder.

At Division 8, on the eighth floor, at No. 1 Beacon street, more than fifty cards had been filled out by the clerks during the first three hours.

Chairman Henry L. Shattuck of Division 8 expressed himself as much pleased at the progress of the work by his assistants: Charles L. Barlow, James F. Carter, David Mancovitz, Israel Ruby and Joseph S. Spencer. Chairman Everett W. Burdett of the Legal Advisory Board of Division 8 was present to give advice to registrants whenever questions arose for solution.

In East Boston at Division 2, in charge of William C. Maguire, fifty men had registered in the first hour and a half. At Division 1, East Boston Public Library, seven clerks had enrolled thirty-five men before 9 o'clock.

Chelsea Court House, Division 1 of Chelsea, was the scene of the enrollment of forty more registrants during the early morning hours. Division 2 at Chelsea City Hall lagged behind with twenty-five men enrolled at 8:30.

BUSY IN REVERE AND WINTHROP

Division 25, Revere and Winthrop, had registered twenty-five during the first hour and a half following the opening at Winthrop Lodge of Elks Hall.

Judge Charles J. Brown, chairman of Division 25, opened a special registration booth in Revere City Hall to accommodate the Revere boys, who would otherwise have been obliged to travel to Winthrop to register.

The Revere branch of Division 25 had registered thirty-five draftees at 9 a. m. The work of enrollment here was in charge of City Clerk Albert J. Brown.

In Dorchester 180 tweny-one-year-old men registered during the first hour. It is expected that nearly 1,500 Dorchester young men will have registered for military service before nightfall. In all divisions it was found that many young men who would otherwise have been obliged to register had already enlisted in the service.

At all registration places the Committee on Preliminary Military Instruction to Registrants have posted a notice of free military instruction to be furnished all registrants who desire to take time by the forelock and prepare themselves for service before actually being called. This step, it was pointed out, would place candidates in line for rapid promotion once they were inducted into the service.

The following places are indicated where free military instruction can be obtained:

South Armory, Irvington street, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 7 p. m.

East Armory, No. 75 East Newton street, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p. m.

Charlestown Armory, No. 366 Bunker Hill street, Mondays at 8 p. m.

Curtis Hall, Jamaica Plain, Wednesdays and Fridays at 8 p. m.

Brighton High School, Cambridge street, corner of Warren street, Brighton, Mondays and Fridays at 8 p. m.

EXPECT EARLY CALL.

It is estimated that 39,000 registrants will be enrolled by the draft boards throughout the State during the day. Of this number approximately 80 per cent are in Class I-A and will be subject to immediate call following physical examination.

The only men of 21 years old in the nation who are exempt from registration are those of that age already in the Federal service. Naval reservists must register along with civilians, but will be immediately placed in Class V as heretofore. Only those naval reservists now actually on duty are exempt from registration.

POLICEMEN IN PROVIDENCE ARE SCARCE

61 Men Guarding Reservoirs Outside City—Appeal Is to Be Made to Governor

Providence, June 5.—Police officials say city taxpayers are being imposed upon and the efficiency of the police department impaired as a result of sixty-one Providence policemen being assigned to guard reservoirs outside the city. They will ask Governor Beeckman to shoulder the burden outside the city limits.

With twenty-nine more patrolmen in the U. S. government service, the officials say they find it difficult to properly police the city.

For months it has been police gossip that "timber" for police officers has been scarce. Police Surgeon Clifford H. Griffin is said to have warned the police commissioners that a great majority of applicants have been physically unfit for duty as policemen.

"We have got to win this war and we are going to win it, but it is unreasonable to expect Providence tax payers to guard all the reservoirs outside the city when by so doing the efficiency of the department is at a low ebb as a consequence," said a prominent official.

CROWDS STORM NORTH SQUARE ICE STATION

"Cash and Carry" Plan Keeps Down Price; Help for "Shut-Ins"

The third of the Boston ice stations under the auspices of the Public Safety Committee opened today in North Square. Baby carriages, wheelbarrows, dish pans and children's carts were used in carrying away ice to many homes.

An ice cart was drawn up in the center of the square. Near the ice cart is a booth. At the booth ice tickets are sold, the rate being 25 cents for 100 pounds. The purchasers then receive their ice from the cart and carry it to their homes.

The most popular amount today at the North Square stationed was twenty pounds for five cents. Mrs. Lena Sordello, a member of the Red Cross, assisted by Miss Etta Transaglia, had charge of the station today.

These ice stations have been opened through the co-operation of the Public Safety Committee and the ice companies to provide cheaper ice during the warm weather. A station has also been opened in East Boston and another in South Boston. Volunteer workers are in charge of the stations. The North Square station will deal out ice from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily.

Arrangements have also been made to provide ice for people who are ill. Blanks for this purpose can be secured from Mr. Voter at No. 201 Devonshire street or at No. 110 State street from the Boston Ice Company. The sick blanks must be signed by a doctor. When properly endorsed and sent to the ice station volunteer workers will deliver the ice to the home of the sick.

Four hundred automobiles gaily decorated and containing two thousand children from nineteen charitable institutions of Boston were given an outing at Nantasket Beach today as the guests of the Automobile Dealers Association of Boston. Upon arriving at the Beach the children enjoyed a dinner at the Nantasket Cafe after which they were given rides on the roller coaster and other amusements of Paragon park.

The children were each given a small American flag, a red, white and blue paper hat and a box of chocolates, donated by the association.

The large gathering of children were under the direction and care of Chester I. Campbell, former mayor of Quincy.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Simple Home Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

GIRL FLOATED ON DEAD BODY OF FIANCE

Carolina Passenger Tells Harrowing Story of Hardship and Drowning of Others

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, June 5.—For ten hours in the night Miss Edith Donato Virola, an eighteen-year-old Porto Rican girl, coming to this country to marry, floated on the cork buoyed body of her drowned fiance before she was dragged to safety, after the steamship Carolina was torpedoed.

The girl and ten other survivors of the Carolina arrived here this evening on their way to New York.

"We had been out for four and a half days from Porto Rico when the submarine sighted us," Miss Virola said tonight. "Then at 6 o'clock at night we were summoned by the sound of a gun shot across our bows to surrender. The officers told us that we were given half an hour to escape. We all left the boat in less than twenty minutes. We were in a boat with twenty-six members of the crew, which was towing another containing thirty men and women.

"The boat we were towing capsized and carried us over into the water. This was about dusk. All the thirty men and women in the other boat were drowned, we believe, though we don't know for sure. Sixteen of our own boatload were lost."

Miss Virola would not disclose the name of her fiance.

President Makes New Appeal in Behalf of Mooney

By International News Service.

Washington, June 5.—President Wilson has renewed his efforts to save the life of Tom Mooney, between whom and the gallows stands only executive clemency by Governor Stevens of California.

It became known here today that the President has sent another telegram to the California Governor, urgently requesting action that will make certain of no miscarriage of justice.

The President had already appealed to Governor Stevens and sent a personal commission headed by Secretary of Labor Wilson to California, which, after examining the evidence, reported grave doubts of Mooney's having been given a fair trial.

FIVE GERMAN AIRPLANES DESTROYED BY FRENCH

By International News Service.

Paris, June 5.—Five German airplanes and two captive balloons were destroyed by the French. Forty-nine tons of projectiles were dropped by French flyers on enemy troop convoys and columns, the night communique says.

Fitzgerald Would Burn German Books on the Common

Let all German text books now in the Boston public schools be burned in a mammoth bonfire on the Common July 4, is the suggestion of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, made in an address to the employes of the B. F. Sturtevant Company, Hyde Park.

In view of the fact that the school authorities have recommended the dropping of certain German books from the school courses, the ex-Mayor thinks a thorough job should be made of it. There can be no half measures, he declared. He told the employes that they could show their patriotism by conscientious devotion to their work, which would help win the war.

CAN ENROLL FOR WORK ON FARMS

Federal Employment Bureau Offers Many Opportunities to Those Willing to Work

By THOMAS F. PHELAN, United States Farm Agent.

Farmers are urged by the Employment Service to assist in the development of rural motor transportation in order to release as much labor as possible for production. In a letter to the Highways Transportation Committee of the Council of National Defence, Assistant Secretary Louis F. Post promised the co-operation of the Department of Labor in the plans of the Council of National Defence for the institution and development of rural motor transportation.

He pointed out in his letter that a five-ton truck with a single man can deliver more than three wagons with three drivers, and incidentally cover three times the mileage. The institution of a service such as is contemplated by the Highways Transport Committee would not only secure better marketing of products, but also add to the labor supply and increase the variety and quantity of production, Mr. Post stated.

MANY RESPOND TO CALL.

Quite a delegation of prospective farmers, responding to the calls for help issued in this column, registered today at the Federal employment office, No. 53 Canal street, where the AMERICAN has office space. This newspaper is an authorized farm labor agency, No. 107, of the United States Employment Service, Department of Labor. All farm hands, therefore, who wish to enroll for positions in the country may call at the Canal street office and fill out applications. Pay ranges from $46 a month upward.

H. A. Stevens, district superintendent, requests farmers when soliciting at this office for help to mention all particulars as to hours of labor, length of time to be employed, board and rooms, salary, etc. Do not say, "We want a farmhand." It is difficult to enroll an applicant unless he can be told the sort of work he is intended to perform. Farmers will shortly receive applications to fill out. These should be forwarded at once to No. 53 Canal street, care of William J. Burke.

The Provost Marshal-General has ordered that "men actively, completely and assiduously engaged in the planting and cultivation of a crop, but who are listed in Class I of the new draft call and within the new quota, should be deferred until the end of the new quota."

AFFIDAVITS NEEDED.

The local draft boards, being judicial bodies, cannot defer the call of such men, however, unless the farmers employing them comply with the law and support their claims for deferred callings with affidavits. It is, therefore, of vital importance that farmers employing necessary men within the new quota immediately execute and file such affidavits with the local boards.

If farmers whose hands are affected by this new call fail to follow this advice, they will have no cause for complaint if their men are taken from them at this critical time. It will be useless and unreasonable later to protest if they have done nothing to retain their help. Immediate action on the part of every farmer concerned is essential and should not be delayed under any circumstances.

Farmers must be convinced that, while there is a shortage of skilled farm labor, there is a sufficient supply of labor available for farming. They must make their needs known in time by notifying a rural mail carrier, postmaster, county agent or the nearest public employment office of the number and kind of workers they require.

STREET CARMEN ASK 60 CENTS AN HOUR

More Pay or Men Must Seek More Attractive Fields, Says Letter to "L"

Boston street carmen have asked President Matthew Brush of the Elevated for a wage increase to 60 cents an hour. They do not threaten to strike. They say they must have the increase or seek other positions paying more money.

This action was taken by a special meeting of the Boston Street Carmen's Union. The letter sent to President Brush was signed by Matthew J. Higgins, president, and William J. Timming, business agent. The letter says, in part:

"We have an agreement with your company which we intend to keep as far as it is humanly possible.

"We neither want nor are threatening a strike. We have nearly 2,000 members in the service of the country, and we recognize our duty to them as well as to all other good men who are battling for us in order to preserve the liberties of our country.

"The government of the United States itself is paying wages to less skilled labor greatly in excess of what we are receiving, and common laborers are getting much more than our men, in some instances 55 to 60 cents an hour. A tremendous feeling of unrest is abroad among our people, with the result that unless something is done immediately, and of a very substantial character, you will not be able to keep these men in your employ.

"In view of the fact that the Legislature of the State has recently passed for your company a "service at cost" plan, we do not believe that either the government or any other set of persons have a right to ask our men to make any greater sacrifices than they have already made.

"We therefore respectfully suggest that under all the circumstances that the men engaged in transportation service should receive an increase to 60 cents an hour, and that the wages of all other employes who are members of our organization should be correspondingly increased. We are sending this letter by the unanimous direction of our executive board.

"We would like to have you arrange a conference at your earliest possible convenience so that we can deal with this emergency."

NAVAL RESERVIST'S BODY SOUGHT IN POND

Lawrence, June 5.—Welch's Pond, Methuen, is being searched for the body of Ernest Starkweather, a naval reservist who was drowned Monday night while canoeing. Starkweather rallied at the boathouse in Methuen Monday afternoon to hire a canoe. He had but a few cents with him, but Mrs. Houghton, who had charge, allowed him to take the boat free because he wore the navy uniform. The finding of an empty canoe and a young man's effects floating in the pond confirms the belief that Starkweather is at the bottom.

1,595,708 Sent to Camp in a Year, Says Crowder

A total of 1,595,708 men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one have been sent to camp to serve the nation since June 5, 1917, by local and district draft boards, it was announced today by Provost Marshal General Crowder in a telegram of congratulation to Major Roger Wolcott in charge of the draft in Massachusetts. His telegram reads in part:

"One year ago occurred the first registration for military purposes of the young manhood of the nation. Ten million men responded in a single day. The work of classification of this great mass of man power in such a way as to permit of its organization and moulding into an effective army was entrusted to 4,663 local boards and 156 district boards, constituting a force of nearly 15,000 of the leading citizens of every community who, assisted in their work by more than 100,000 equally patriotic volunteers, have performed a work that challenges the attention and excites the admiration of all our people."

Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J. The other 1400 will be sent to Camp Devens. The men will go in the five-day period beginning June 24.

The men will be taken from Class I. Able-bodied white men, physically qualified for military service will be summoned to colors.

Nurses Are Wanted for Panama

Advices from A. L. Flint, chief of the Washington office of the Panama canal, indicate that the prevailing shortage of trained female nurses is being seriously felt in the Canal Zone hospitals, where additional nurses are urgently needed. In these large modern hospitals not only the employes of the Panama Canal and Panama Railroad and their families are cared for, but the soldiers stationed on the Isthmus to protect the canal. These nurses are paid $85 a month, including quarters, from time of nailing, with laundry of uniforms, less $26 a month for subsistence.

SWIMMING RACE TO FEATURE NAVY DAY

Committee Working Hard to Make Big Celebration on June 22 a Success

The biggest swimming race ever held in the United States, in which 2,000 contestants will take the water, is one of the features promised for the Navy Day celebration to be held in the Charles River Basin on Navy Day, June 22, by order of Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the First Naval District.

This celebration has the official recognition of Secretary Daniels and it is not unlikely that the secretary will personally attend the games.

Six brass bands from six different navy units in the First Naval District will be stationed at different points around the Charles River Basin to furnish the music to enliven the athletic games.

This pageant will be the biggest outdoor event ever held in Boston if the plans of the admiral and of Captain William R. Rush of the Charlestown Navy Yard go through. Both these officers and every enlisted man in their commands is now working to make the day a success.

It will be the first Navy carnival ever held in Boston in which the whole First Naval District from Eastport, Me., to Chatham, Mass., will be represented.

George V. Brown, athletic director for the War Camp Activities Committee for the district, who is working with a committee of officers appointed by Admiral Wood and Captain Rush, has already arranged some of the numbers in the big athletic program, which promise to furnish entertainment for the crowds.

Among these will be the big swimming race.

A large detachment of life guards will be on hand to guard the swimmers in this race.

Teams of yeowomen will compete for the swimming record of the First Naval District.

It is hoped by the committee in charge of the event that householders along the water side of Beacon street will see fit to deck out their houses with flags and with the Navy colors of white and blue. As many of these houses already carry flags from the front windows it will be an easy matter for householders to move them to the rear for that day.

The committee in charge of the athletic program for the day consists of Lieutenant Leon M. Little, Lieutenant A. A. Gathemann, Chief Pay Clerk R. M. Hoag and George V. Brown.

Two men are dead and two severely injured as the result of a collision between two automobiles on Commonwealth avenue, near Warren street, Allston, early today.

The dead men are Lieutenant Charles F. Butler of the United States Medical Reserve Corps, and John A. Mitchell, a chauffeur, of No. 108 Jackson street, Newton. Their two injured companions who were taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton, were:

Frank C. Wood, 34, of No. 14 Traymore street, Cambridge, director of religious work at the Boston Y. M. C. A.

John W. Williams, a Y. M. C. A. worker, and a former member of the Canadian army.

Two hours after the accident Williams was still unconscious.

The second car in the crash continued on its way. Its occupants showed no concern about and no interest in the dead and injured they left behind them.

At midnight the police of Cambridge learned that a car with a badly damaged running board had put in at a Cambridge garage and taken on five gallons of gasoline. One of the men in this car told the garage attendants that they were bound for Nantasket.

Sues for Injury to Son

TRADING HALTED BY STRIKE AT STOCKYARDS

By International News Service.

Chicago, June 5.—A strike at the stock yards practically tied up trading today. Stock men, scale men and key men are the men who walked out following an executive session last night. They are asking shorter hours and more pay. Steps are under way to arrange a conference to discuss the differences.

The strike does not directly affect the packing plants, but halts the supply of cattle on which the plants depend.

It is estimated between 500 and 600 men are out. Officials said if the strike continues it may eventually affect between 55,000 and 60,000 workers.

When the stock-handlers quit this morning there were more than 300 cars loaded with cattle standing in the yards. Commission brokers and officials donned overalls and aided in getting the cattle into pens.

ASK AN EXTENSION OF NIAGARA WATER PERMITS

By International News Service.

Washington, June 5—Senator Hitchcock as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, introduced a resolution, extending the date for permits for Niagara Falls waterpower to July 1, 1919. These permits, which concern only power from the United States side of the falls, would have ordinarily expired June 30 of this year.

A delegation from New York State appeared before the Foreign Relations Committee of the House seeking to have a similar measure introduced in the House.

EAGAN DISDAINS A FOUL AWARD; IS KAYOED

Tommy Robson Drops Dorchester Boy for Count in Fifth, After Being Outstepped

By J. P. MURPHY.

Tommy Robson, of Malden, sprang the unexpected by knocking out Joe Eagan, Dorchester's blond battler, in the fifth round of what was to have been a twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s weekly show at the Arena.

The finishing blow, a left hook, which landed flush on Eagan's jaw, came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. Joe went down like a log, falling flat on his back. He made an attempt to get up, but it was useless.

As it was, he was barely able to raise his shoulders from the mat, and then only after the fatal ten had been tolled off by eRferee aLrry Conley.

EAGAN WAS IN LEAD.

Up to the time of the sudden ending, Eagan had all the better of the gong. Robson shaded him in the first two rounds but Joe shook Tommy unmercifully with short left and right arm jolts in the third and fourth, and several times had the Malden boy groggy.

During the hottest part of the fourth round, Eagan slipped to the mat near his own corner, and, while down, was hit at least half a dozen times by Robson before Referee Conley was able to intervene.

When he had regained his feet the Dorchester boy engaged in a hurried conversation with the referee. He told Conley that he claimed the fight on a foul, and, while Larry had ground to award it to him, he made it plain to Joe that he was not hurt; that the public should be considered, and urged him to continue. This Joe did, to meet his Waterloo two rounds later.

The knockout followed one of Robson's flashes. He rushed Eagan around the ring, while Joe covered up with both hands over his head. Tired of backing him up, the Malden boy waited for Joe in the centre of the ring, and, when Eagan came rushing at him, he held his left out and hooked it at the proper time. What happened is now history with the Hub's sporting set.

O'BRIEN AT HIS BEST.

Shaver O'Brien of South Boston, who substituted for Tommy Elm of Paterson, N. J., outpointed Johnny Noonan of Dorchester in the eight-round semi-final. Shaver's right-hand jab had Noonan all at sea.

Noonan shook Shaver quite frequently with right hand swings, but the Peninsula lad never faltered, always came back and danced merrily to victory with his right hand landing on all parts of Noonan's face.

Bob Josephs of the South End made good in his professional debut by stopping Bob Ambrose of Cambridge in three rounds. Kid Lee of Chelsea bested Johnny Gray, a fellow townie, in the second preliminary of six rounds.

JOE RIVERS of Gloucester will be given an opportunity to retrieve his recent defeat at the hands of Victor Dahl when he engages the Dane in the eight-round semi-final to the Britton-Downey scrap. At Newport, R. I., Rivers was knocked out by Dahl after having all the better of the skirmish up to the time of the final blow.

ALTHOUGH A spectator at the Eagan-Robson bout at the Arena, Red Burman, former Hub newsboy, but now a Milwaukeean, and the lad who piloted Joe Eagan through his successful drive in the Middle West, wishes it understood that he did not handle the Dorchester battler last night. Joe and Red parted company soon after Eagan's first set-to with Robson and are no longer friends.

CORBETT'S CORNER

Jenkins and Gotch wrestled in New York city on March 15, Graeco-Roman style, and Jenkins was the victor. Gotch was no match for Jenkins at that time at that brutal style of wrestling. However, the defeat of Gotch didn't lose for him his crown as catch-as-catch-can king.

From March 21 Gotch won from Emil Selva in Paterson, defeated Americus the next day in Washington—and then came his match with Tom Jenkins in New York city which Jenkins won, thus taking back to himself the title as American heavyweight wrestling champion.

Rarely in wrestling history has a man perpetrated more fouls in a single contest than did Tom Jenkins on the night of May 19, 1905, in New York.

Largely through the use of them he defeated Frank Gotch in that never-to-be-forgotten mat duel and so regained the title of American heavyweight wrestling champion, catch-as-catch-can style.

For some reason never made clear except posibly by charges of favoritism, Tim Hurst, the referee, ignored every violation of the mat rules by Jenkins and utterly refused to disqualify or even to caution the Clevelander.

FOUL WORK UNNOTICED.

With the call of time for the first fall Jenkins rushed at Gotch, but the Iowan grabbed him and tossed him to the mat. For more than a half-hour Gotch held Jenkins there and tried with furious eagerness to gain a fall.

But Jenkins finally broke away, and as he jumped to his feet swung a heavy right-hand punch, which caught Gotch in the mouth.

Gotch protested, but Hurst waved him aside. Even while Gotch was protesting Jenkins rushed at his unprepared rival, grabbed him around the throat and secured a strangle hold—a foul mat trick.

Gotch again protested, but once more Hurst answered it by "Go on and wrestle."

Jenkins seemed doomed to lose the first fall when, of a sudden, he reached up and clutched the ropes to save himself—a trick that every rule of wrestling specifically bars.

That action in itself should have brought to Jenkins a warning from the referee—but it didn't.

GRABBED ROPES FOR AID.

Jenkins had broken four rules of wrestling in less than one minute—yet Hurst calmly ignored each and every one of them.

Infuriated by Jenkins' methods, Gotch decided to resort to a little brutality himself. He succeeded in catching Jenkins around the waist and flung him to the floor with great force.

As Jenkins was getting up Gotch hurled himself upon him, bore Jenkins to the ropes and dashed him down again.

Loud and insistent demands came from the audience to disqualify the Clevelander. But Hurst apparently was deaf.

After more than an hour of furious exertion Gotch slowed in his attack and then Jenkins assumed the aggressive, and through the use of a head hold was able to force the shoulders of Gotch to the mat, gaining the first fall in 1 hour and 30 minutes.

GOTCH HURT BY FALL.

Soon after the wrestling began for the second fall, Jenkins grabbed Gotch and hurled him through the ropes and into the crowd. Gotch fell with a heavy thud in the aisles and seemed badly dazed.

It was almost necessary to lead him back into the ring. Wrestling for a while on the defensive until his brain cleared, Gotch suddenly saw an opening, grabbed Jenkins and in the scuffle that followed Jenkins went through the ropes and out into the crowd.

When the men went to the centre of the mat for the third fall something seemed to be radically wrong with Gotch. He seemed wobbly in the legs and apparently had no sense of direction.

Jenkins realized this, and like a tiger sprang upon his prey. Even as Jenkins was trying to flop Gotch, the boy from Iowa seemed to collapse in his arms. Jenkins lifted up Gotch and threw him to the floor with crashing force.

Gotch struggled to his feet, stumbled forward, and fell his full length, face downward, to the floor and was "out" for nearly twenty minutes.

So it was that Tom Jenkins regained his crown.

Wiley and Corry vs. Linart and Suter at Beach Track

A motor-paced race, with a real midseason flavor, will be staged at the Revere Cycle track tonight. George Wiley of Syracuse, teamed up with Frank Corry of Australia, meet Victor Linart, Belgium champion, and Paul Suter, Swiss flyer, over the 40-mile route.

The race promises to prove one of the closest ever ridden at the beach oval, and, as all four riders are reeling off miles in fast time in their practice stunts, the timers are likely to get a little surprise.

Tim Sullivan of New Haven, Ct., will make his debut with the "pros," and, with Loftus back in the running, some interesting clashes are looked for.

In addition to the motor-paced and professional events, Manager Butler has arranged a classy card of amateur events.

GENERAL ELECTRICS TO HOLD FIELD DAY JUNE 22

For the convenience of the athletes autos will meet them at the Lynn B. & M. R. R. station and convey them to the park. Entry blanks can be obtained from J. P. O'Brien, General Electric Company Building, 3d V, West Lynn.

CAMBRIDGE BOYS GET KEITH CREW TROPHY

The Cambridge Latin oarsmen, winners of the Interscholastic Rowing Associatiin championship last week, were the guests of honor at Keith's Theatre when Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge presented Captain Jim MacDonald the B. F. Keith Memorial trophy.

Each oarsman was introduced to the audience. Randolph Haizer, the bow, was the first. Then followed Henry Spencer, No. 2; John Collier, No. 3; and Captain Jim MacDonald, stroke, and little Willie Manning, the popular coxswain.

MALDEN HIGH TO LOSE STAR IN BUSHELL

Malden High's Suburban League championship aspirations received a body blow when John Bushell, star fielder, announced that he would leave school at the close of the session. He leaves to enter business. Bushell has been the heavy hitter of the Malden team and with the championhip almost within its grasp, Malden is much concerned over the loss of their high average batter.

HON. BABE RUTH BUSY MAKING HIT HISTORY

Barrow's "Ace" Again Smites Out His Third Homer on Three Successive Days

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Somebody else in baildom might have did it in the long- long ago, but the record books fail to show it—meaning that Battering Babe Ruth's performance of smiting out three home runs on three successive playing days for the second time this campaign is probably furnishing the baseball historians with some new material.

There's few players who pile up six over-the-fence drives in a playing season, and that by participating in all 154 matinees. Still, that's Ruth total for '18, and June 1 has scarcely passed.

The last time the Red Sox were on the road, Battering Babe bunched three homers in three days, whacking out two in New York and coming back with his third one in Washington.

He has just got through bunching three in Detroit on three subsequent afternoons. Hence, fandom will await with extreme interest the Cleveland returns today.

Another homer for Babe—and Bo, the right field wall there is far from deep—and Hub fandom will insist that Bucky Freeman, the game's original home run king, and the two Franks, Schulte and Baker, modern-day monarchs at the specialty, don't rank one-two-twenty-three with the burly Baltimorean and Ed Barrow's big "Ace."

Here's the Ruth dope, the dates of his record-breaking home run swatting and the lists of his victims:

May 4—In New York, Russell.
May 6—In New York, Mogridge.
May 7—In Washington, Johnson.
June 2—In Detroit, Erickson.
June 3—In Detroit, Dauss.
June 4—In Detroit, James.

Sh-h! Don't become excited over May 5 being missing from the list. It fell on a Sunday, and, as the Red Sox were in the East, there wasn't any matinee.

CADDOCK AND OLIN TO MEET IN RETURN BOUT

Waterloo, Ia., June 5.—Sergeant Earl Caddock, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, and John Olin of Finland, will meet in a return match here this month. Caddock threw Olin after a spirited set-to in their recent encounter at Des Moines.

BRAVES OUT TO LAND FINAL

Cubs Confident of Making Cleanup of Series Here. Luck Against Locals

By NICK FLATLEY.

Those Cubs, who have been just as welcome here in our fair city as U-boats, played the Braves a farewell contest this afternoon and then departed for other parts, perfectly well satisfied with themselves. They think they are going to be champions and enjoy the idea immensely.

But the Braves are not inclined to think along those lines at all, despite three successive defeats. All three games might have gone the other way with very little shift in luck. Accordingly the local heroes are not a whit discouraged and still keep plugging away.

But my Hearn was ready to try to start the [illegible] today, while Mitchell had Weaver, who finished up the other day, and Hendrix, who opened the series prepared.

Dana Fillingim, pitcher, looks like the best little shutout artist that has flashed on the baseball screen for quite some time.

Out in the West he hung up three [illegible] victories shortly after he became a big leaguer again with the Braves.

All the fans hereabouts wanted to see just how he did it. They saw yesterday, all of them that were there.

Dana was beaten by the Cubs, 3 to 2, but he pitched a shutout if ever a hurler did. The Cubs had no more right to any scores than the Crown Prince has to the medals the Kaiser wishes on him every now and then.

CUBS' DAILY PRESENT.

The Braves, all in all, played bang-up ball. But they made a few errors, three to be exact. They made them all in the fifth round and handed the near-leaders from Chicago exactly three markers. It was a crime, a shame, not to mention an awful shock, and it just ruined a perfectly good ball game.

The Stallings pupils were aided and abetted in gathering their pair of tallies when Rollie Zeider perpetrated one of those [illegible] (an error) in the fourth, but that doesn't alter the fact that young Mister Fillingim deserved his shutout.

The fray was a great duel, as the [illegible] say, between [illegible] the [illegible] and big Jim Vaughn. The pair of them might have been fighting it out down through the elongated evening daylight, but for non support.

Tillie Walker Giving Hon. Babe Ruth Hot Race for Honors

As Pattering Babe Ruth disdains from doing anything more in a swat way daily than to smite out a home run, expiring save when so crippled, his average continues to drop.

It's now .379 whereas up to the time Babe started "sailing" for Amos Strunk it was well over the .400 mark.

Tillie Walker, the American League's other home run hero, is in second place with a notch of .371. Then comes J. Franklin Baker, former king of the round-trip makers, George Sisler and George Burns. N. B., it's a tie between the two Georges for the four five spots.

In the National League, Fred Merkle, who is hitting harder than ever before this season, continues the runner up to Larry Doyle, Giants' crippled second-sacker.

Then follows Benny Kauff, J. Carlisle (that's Red) Smith and Lee Magee. The two Fancy Fives are:

FULLERTON'S COLUMN

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

There isn't a manager or player in the National League who is begrudging Hugo Bezdek any of the honors, or even the games, he has won with the Pirates.

Bezdek, practically unknown, has become one of the best-liked men in baseball. He is respected by everyone, and a number of the managers are saying, "Well, if we can't, we hope Bezdek does."

It proves that, after all, sport is the thing and that a real man's man wins. No one calls Bezdek a "busher," or ridicules him, and everyone is pulling for him. It is the only case of a new and inexperienced manager winning at all points that I have ever known.

When Bezdek came to the Pirates there was a general howl of amusement and astonishment. He never had managed, he scarcely even had played baseball. He was a college man and college men are not, as a usual thing, welcomed quickly in the major leagues, especially as managers. Now no one criticises him. It is hats off.

ENTITLED TO SUCCESS.

Bezdek is a born fighter. He was born over back of the Yards in Chicago and grew up a rough, strong two fisted lad, fighting his way through school. He even aspired to be a boxer and many times battled with the gloves and without them. He hadn't much science, but his strength and courage carried him through.

And always he wanted an education. He determined to attend the University of Chicago and he went there—big, crude and rough and joined the football squad. He literally fought his way to an education. He was accused of being a professional fighter and defended his record valiantly. He had kept it clear and refused money for boxing because he wanted an education and knew the taint of professionalism would bar him.

He disproved the charge and worked and fought to pay his own way. There are tales of one great [illegible] at the training table that will live forever in the annals of the U. of C.

DID A GOOD JOB.

It is a tale of how Bezdek, head down, battled with two other warriors, shook off the entire squad, wrecked the room and emerged victorious. He won respect, and, when he did not get it, he extracted it with his fists.

He was a great football player and he essayed to play baseball and did it quite badly. But all the time he was developing. He left school, worked, studied and [illegible] a little in baseball, but no one knew his aspirations until Barney Dreyfuss made him manager to succeed Jimmy Callahan.

I was among those who laughed, remembering Hugo as he was at college and high school. But one night at a dinner he was called upon to talk baseball. For half an hour the big, quiet, forceful fellow talked—talked earnestly and amazingly well—and when he sat down I understood more why Dreyfuss chose him. He had brains and he was using them.

HAS PIRATES HUSTLING.

He had used them at Pittsburgh and he has constructed a team which, while weak in some respects, is very dangerous and it is playing the game, playing together, working and working for Hugo.

He is developing into a great manager, slowly, as he developed in other ways, but he is a man's man and I never have seen any team more devoted to the manager than is the one he controls.

John McGraw, who seldom speaks well of a rival (on the field), declares Bezdek is going to be one of the great managers of the league, and that, from McGraw, is praise indeed.

DURING the days following [illegible] the new betrothals the young people exercised great circumspection, for fear the suspicions of Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone should be aroused.

Why Is a Cold?

A MUCH-ASKED QUESTION ANSWERED

By Brice Belden, M. D.

PROLONGED exposure in moderately low temperatures is more dangerous than brief subjection to sudden cold shocks. A cold douche or plunge is followed by prompt reaction of the muscle-fibres of the skin and of the small blood vessels are [illegible] orous condition. The blood [illegible] from the surface for a brief period, but shortly returns with the result that the circulation is improved. The toning up of the skin then follows enables it to contract [illegible] exposure, such as a draught at any time.

In prolonged exposure to cold, especially during high winds or chilly and damp weather, with wetting of the garments, a large amount of blood is cooled and the contracting muscular mechanism of the skin becomes fatigued under the strain and relaxes, and the normal circulatory reaction also ceases.

If one takes [illegible] in the feeling [illegible] induced by [illegible] exposed to [illegible] ditions he is [illegible] for the flushing [illegible] follows the use of alcohol is due to a paralysis of the small muscle fibres in the skin upon the good tone of which we are so dependent.

There is not only a paralysis of the small muscles of the skin but also of the muscular coats of the tiny blood vessels of the skin. [illegible] mechanisms are put out of business.

Instead of a better circulation following [illegible] of a chill there is a [illegible] of [illegible] skin [illegible]

[illegible] stand exposure to cold with [illegible] less danger of inflammatory [illegible] if our air were pure, that is, free from microbes. Arctic explorers are not very apt to catch cold, for the reason that the air in far northern latitudes is comparatively pure.

In crowded places one's vitality is lowered by the vitiated air and a choice variety of germs is acquired.

Commencement Clothes

HOW TO MAKE THEM ECONOMICALLY

By Rita Stuyvesant.

COMMENCEMENT week will be here very soon, and what a time it means for the girl graduate! The little social affairs, the dances, luncheons and farewells [illegible] pretty clothes [illegible] though [illegible] is going [illegible] patterns [illegible] paying for [illegible] these lovely frocks can be made up so reasonably at home that [illegible] will hardly be able to resist dressing her daughter [illegible] commencement week.

[illegible] a "frat" dance. It was of [illegible] color taffeta combined with tulle of the same shade. So delightfully simple was this frock that a girl could make it herself with a little help from mother.

The skirt was rather brief about the [illegible] measuring about a yard and a [illegible] and was cut from the [illegible]. Over this was draped a double-pointed tunic of tulle picoted on the edge and hanging full and dainty as a mist. The tulle very nearly covered the skirt.

The quaint bodice was of taffeta and [illegible] a short basque. The [illegible] ders. Very dainty bell sleeves of the fine tulle were set in and were cut off a little above the elbow. For modesty, a few folds of the tulle were tucked into the top of the silk bodice.

This delightful little dance frock might also be developed in any other. Pink, lettuce green, French blue, cherry red, orchid and rose are only a few of the many [illegible] ors. With a bunch of [illegible] sweetpeas from the garden, this adorable little gown cannot fail to please the most "fussy" girl.

There are a number of possible ways of making this frock from another evening dress. Perhaps big sister's dinner gown of silk or satin will afford enough material for the underskirt and basque. Then only [illegible] of crisp new tulle will be needed to complete this [illegible] party frock.

Another youthful model for the class dance could be made of soft satin and georgette crepe. [illegible], too, an out-of-date frock of satin might be used, and only new crepe would be needed, thereby [illegible] beading makes a smart though [illegible] expensive trimming.

Over a plain narrow skirt of satin drop a straight gathered tunic of georgette, heavily beaded. Try finishing the bottom of the skirt by a thick cording rather than a hem. A loose blouse of georgette with satin underneath might have a vest set in. Short puff sleeves and a pretty girdle of crushed satin [illegible] frock.

So, if your daughter is looking forward to commencement week and its social affairs, help her plan at least one pretty new dance frock.

The Girls Hold a Meeting

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

DEMOCRACY BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1918. LIBERTY

NIGHT SNIPING FOR AYER BOYS TONIGHT

Bayonet Attacks Slated for Tomorrow Night; More Promotions

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, June 5.—Night sniping starts here tonight in the trenches used by the division schools. Flares, rockets, flood and search lights are to be employed to aid members of the snipers' school in seeking out the enemy. The exhibition will be staged under the direction of Lieutenant E. G. Sandell.

Night bayonet attacks are also to be held under similar conditions tomorrow night on thebayonet assault course back of the base hospital by members of the division bayonet schools under Captain R. L. H. Goodday of the British Military Mission.

A new plucking board was appointed here today to examine into the efficiency and qualifications of such commissioned officers at this cantonment as may be referred to it. Colonel J. F. Preston, commander of the 303d Infantry, is chairman, and the rest of the board consists of Lieutenant-Colonel G. W. Stuart, also of the 303d Infantry; Major James A. Sarratt of Division Headquarters and Captain Franklin D. Putnam, recorder.

First Lieutenant Hugh B. Craig of Shippensburg, Pa., has been made a captain and assigned to the 301st Field Signal Battalion, commanded by Major J. J. Fanning of Boston, and Second Lieutenant Paul Eustis Callanan, of Boston, has been promoted to the rank of a first lieutenant and assigned to the military police.

First-Class Sergeants Chandler H. Foster and Howard E. Pease, two more of the men at this cantonment who recently passed the examinations for commissions as second lieutenants in the quartermaster corps, have been sent to the quartermaster officers' training camp at Camp Joseph E. Johnston at Jacksonville, Florida, for courses of instruction.

Two more negro soldiers died at the base hospital today of pneumonia. They were Privates Reuben Tucker of Monticello, Fla., a member of the 519th Service Battalion, and Alexander Grooms of Tallahassee, Fla., who belonged to the 302nd Company of the Depot Brigade.

EDITORIAL

The sentence just imposed upon a first lieutenant at Camp Devens should be taken to heart by the rest of the junior officers at the cantonment.

It should teach them to be extremely careful about everything they do when they are away from their commands.

The laws of the army were made for officers as well as the enlisted men and those who break them must expect to suffer the consequences.

Evil association has undermined more than one admirable character and no officer who thinks anything of his family, his friends, his trust or himself can afford to allow outside influences to drag him into the mire of military disgrace.

The army demands that every officer be a gentleman. It sets a high standard and does its best to maintain it.

A dishonorable discharge from the service of the United States is a difficult thing for any man to live down and it is a splendid tribute to the men in the army that these cases have been so rare.

Abandon Plan for 'Bone Dry' Nation During War

By International News Service.

Washington, June 5.—The Randall amendment designed to make the nation "bone dry" during the war is dead. This statement was made this afternoon by Senator Sheppard of Texas, the "dry" leader of the Senate, after conferences with the President and Herbert C. Hoover, food administrator.

President Wilson told Senator Sheppard that he was opposed to the Randall amendment unless it was deemed necessary to the conservation of food by Mr. Hoover. Mr. Hoover, according to Senator Sheppard, held that not only was the measure unnecessary but unwise at the present time.

TARS KEPT BUSY COUNTING UP FUNDS

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, June 5.—Tuesday was pay day on the receiving ship. The big war chests were brought over from the Navy Yard and, for an hour or two, the paymaster's force was busy handing out the small official envelopes in which Uncle Sam gives out the money that is due the sailors once a month.

Counting up their funds occupied the tars for a while. That is, it occupied those who received any funds to count, as, owing to war conditions, the channel in which the pay accounts flow in the Navy quite frequently becomes obstructed, and individual sailors have become accustomed to passing several months with empty pockets unless they were able to negotiate a loan from a friend or found relief through the all-embracing kindness of the chaplain's office.

PAY IS SURE.

There has been some grumbling of course among the sailors over pay held-ups, but on the whole the delays have been taken philosophically with a realization that, although Uncle Sam might be slow, he is undoubtedly good for the payment of all bills that he contracts.

The subject of the payment of pay allotments to relatives of the sailors has been almost equally troublesome. Under the law a man may allot up to one-half of his pay to dependents and the government will furnish the funds to double the amount. But unfortunately many of the allotments have been greatly retarded in reaching their destination. In some cases the delay has extended over several months, and if it had not been for Red Cross assistance many persons would undoubtedly have suffered.

This delay has undoubtedly been due in many cases to the sailors themselves. They have in numerous instances been lax in properly filling out and filing the various blanks required, and, in a few cases, it is believed there has been a deliberate attempt to defraud the government.

FALSE CLAIMS PUNISHED.

This has made it necessary for the Navy to adopt a very rigid system of examining and passing upon claims. To minimize the number of attempts to defraud, notice has been issued that the regulations regarding the making of perjured statements in putting allotment claims before the government will in the future be severely punished. The penalties that can be enforced are a fine up to $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years.

FIELD FOR MOTOR TRUCK GROWS EACH DAY

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

The field for the motor truck is growing daily in Boston and vicinity as is shown by the sales records of the various concerns which are handling trucks. While the Clydesdale is a new truck for Fred C. Henderson, it is not new to this city and the fact that Mr. Henderson's organization is devoting its time to the sale of Clydesdales as well as the Signal is evidence that the field for trucks is large in this vicinity. The combined sales organizations of the Clydesdale and the Signal companies have been kept busy since the formal taking over of the business by Mr. Henderson on June 1.

Many prospective customers have visited the commodious quarters at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Gaffney street. Not only is the Boston business growing rapidly, but the agents in Worcester, New Bedford, Fall River, Providence, Nashua and the western part of the State have been interviewed by many prospective purchasers. The reputation earned by the truck on the battlefields of France, and its approval by the British government as a truck that will stand up under hard usage, bring it to the attention of truck users.

"That our service station established for Clydesdale trucks is one of the best in the country is conceded on all sides," says Mr. Henderson. "It is fully equipped for rapid repairs and replacement of parts. 'No delay' is the watchword at this service station. The service and stock rooms are completely fitted up to do any kind of a truck service job, from simple adjustments to a complete asembly if necessary in case of accidents.

"The stocks of parts is one of the largest in New England. Parts for every model are constantly on hand. The same efficient service we give for the Signal truck, will be maintained for the Clydesdale."

SPECIAL K. OF C. PARTY BY PHONE OPERATORS

Mosley-on-the-Charles is the scene of a special aid party to be given for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus Fund by the operators of the Haymarket Telephone Exchange tomorrow night. There is every indication that a substantial sum will be raised. Soldiers and sailors will be present. The committee in charge are Miss Helen C. Norton, chairman; Misses Valarie Shea, Margaret Driscoll, Angie Hughes, Celia Conroy and Edna Driscoll.

CITY LOSES IF GAS CONTRACT IS KILLED

"The Finance Commission believes that the abrogation of the contract with the Consolidated Gas Company means a loss to the city of Boston of at least $250,000 for the balance of the contract term," says that body in a report filed with Mayor Peters today advising him to veto the order of the City Council abrogating the street lighting contract.

The Finance Commission adds that it appears the only reason for the action of the City Council is to secure a raise in pay for former lamplighters who went on strike for an increase in pay of $1 a day.

After summing up the history of the lighting contracts and the attempt made to set it aside the Finance Commission says:

FOUR HOURS' WORK.

"As regards the adequacy of the compensation paid by the Welsbach Company (by whom the lamplighters are employed) to its employes, it is undoubtedly a fact that present conditions were unforeseen at the time of the contract between the Welsbach Company and its employes, that the pay of all classes of labor has been raised and that recent street lighting contracts in other cities have been made at prices considerably higher than those of previously existing contracts, due to the increase in price of labor and materials.

"On the other hand, the situation of the street lighters in Boston is not the same as for a laborer in ordinary employment. The work requires at the most not more than four hours per day, and as a matter of fact probably not more than three hours is consumed by the average lamplighter.

"Moreover, the work is done at such times that, except for perhaps four months in the Winter season a full working day can be employed by the lamplighters on other work, and even under the worst conditions not more than one and one-half hours need be lost from other employment.

EXTRA EMPLOYMENT.

"Therefore in the majority of cases the compensation for lamplighting can be considered as additional to the compensation received by the ordinary working man and as increasing the amount received by the lamplighters over the pay received by men of similar qualifications in private employ.

"As a matter of fact it is well known that many of the lamplighters have other employments, and that the entire force does not engage in other employments is for reasons other than any necessities imposed on them by their work of lamplighting."

Cardinal O'Connell Makes Notable Address

Especially Important at Time When Legislature and Governor's Council Reject Needed Labor Measures

Cardinal O'Connell delivered a very notable address before the Catholic Women's League at Lowell, where he was born. It is particularly notable because it comes at a time when our Massachusetts Legislature has defeated the fifty-hour bill for women and children—a bill which would have enacted into law a principle of health and social well-being recognized by the most intelligent and progressive nations of the world and by our own National Government.

It is especially notable also at a time when the Governor's Council dares to reject the appointment of a distinguished professor at Harvard for the Minimum Wage Commission, the duties of which are to establish a living wage in this State. Professor Ripley was rejected because he happened to be a progressive and independent man whom no pressure of business or seductions of social condescension could warp from his duty.

Speaking of Lowell as a great manufacturing city, and especially of the employers of labor, Cardinal O'Connell said:

The obligation of doing good has meant little to many who have figured prominantly in the life and activity of this city and who have received much from its people. They came to this place, so beautifully located amid its hills and along the banks of its fast-flowing river, and converted it into an industrial city, obliterating in the process the attractiveness and healthfulness that were God's gift to Lowell. They took the millions that were the product of industry, that were wrung, too, from the muscles and bones and nerves of the workers, and spent these millions elsewhere. They built palaces for themselves where fancy dictated and scattered their wealth for their own pleasure, but they did little or nothing for the people of Lowell who had made them rich. Look about you and you will realize how little has been done here for the welfare of this community by those who have drawn so much from it.

The real benefactors of Lowell have been its good Catholic people, and the glory of the city is their great faith and what that faith made possible; their unflinching patience, their unflagging industry. Viewed in a merely human way these thousands of our people gave their lives to grind out fortunes for ungrateful millionaires. You well know that in the early days of industrialism here men and women toiled from five o'clock in the morning until seven at night, with but a bare half-hour for lunch.

As I knelt at my mother's grave this morning I thought of our fathers and mothers who put their lives into the foundation stones of this great city, who sanctified its soil by their toil, who gave their very blood and sinew for the upbuilding of whatever is best and noblest here.

I recalled how, as a boy, I heard the tramp of the workers going to their duties in the early morn, the mystery, the pity and the needlessly hard conditions of all this incessant labor, and its scanty remuneration. I could do nothing then but feel indignant at the injustice of it all. I did not realize then what a triumph of faith and human nobility it was, and the great purposes of God these workers were fulfilling so humbly, yet so magnificently.

What he said is true in Lowell and true everywhere in this country. We have boasted of our democracy, of our liberty and equality when in the years past we had little except a theoretical, political equality—a theoretical, political liberty and equality. But without economic and social justice political equality merely flouts alleged free institutions.

The Cardinal speaks of the benefactors of Lowell as the Catholic people of Lowell because the Catholic people were the producers of Lowell. The producers of a community are always its benefactors whether Catholic or non-Catholic.

Again Cardinal O'Connell said:

In speaking of the evil and pitiful conditions of past years that Catholic faith made to blossom into blessings, and of the welcome and needed change that time and patience have wrought, I wish to register our thanks and gratitude to a man who, though he had his faults and frailties, deserves eternal credit and gratitude from the people of Lowell. The hours of labor in the mills were twelve hours a day then, and fourteen in the Fall, if I remember aright. We need not enter into the details of what that twelve-hour day meant amid the noise and confusion and in the unsanitary conditions that were then the rule. We need not dilate on the brutality of the men who were imported to act as overseers. We take the proposition in its economic form, the need for a ten-hour day. Benjamin Butler stood for the people and by the people in that great humanitarian movement, and among prominent people he stood practically alone and was made to suffer for his championship of the working poor.

The entire weight of influence and money was arrayed in an effort to crush him, to ostracize and vilify him and his descendants, and it did not balk at calumny. To this day it has not been possible to erect a statue of Benjamin Butler in Lowell. What is the reason for this? Not the faults that have been imputed to the man, not the defects that are alleged against his military career, not the failings that he may have had as a man; these things never denied a man a statue if the dominant class wanted to accord it.

No! The great crime that Butler committed, a crime that the rich and powerful never forgave him, was that he stood for the working people of Lowell. He may not have a memorial in a public square or in front of a municipal edifice, but he is enshrined, as a friend of the poor and a champion of the workingmen and working women, in the hearts of thousands who will never forget what he did for friendless toilers.

Nothing is more true than this tribute to General Benjamin F. Butler of Lowell. While we are holding our Constitutional Convention we are reminded of the fact that General Butler led the progressive forces in the last Constitutional Convention we had, nearly seventy years ago.

It is most encouraging to read these words from the distinguished head in New England of one of the great religious organizations of the world. We need a little more militancy in our religious faith in America, and we need it in the direction in which Cardinal O'Connell was looking when he uttered these words.

FIRE BRAND'S FAITH WAS UNKNOWN VIRTUE

By Winifred Black

"TELL me one thing," said Little Fire Brand, throwing herself down into a chair and staring at me until she looked like a Gorgon or a death's head, or one of the Furies itself.

"Tell me one thing—what good is religion? It is always promising something, and then you have to wait and wait and wait for the promise to come true.

"I hate promises. I want things to be here now when I want them, not some day when I am old and tired and can't enjoy them.

"That's what I hate about religion. It never comes true while you pray. You always have to wait, and what good do you get out of it while you're waiting?"

Whereupon, after the manner of an indulgent and somewhat horrified guide, philosopher and friend, I took Fire Brand to the window.

"Look out," I said.

"I won't," said Fire Brand.

"Why not?" I said.

"Because," said Fire Brand, "I hate everything out of the window today. It ought to be warm and sunshiny and pretty, with green grass and all the trees in blossom and the smell of violets in the air, and here it's pouring and raining and the mud is nearly a foot deep, and all the violets are drowned and you couldn't find a wildflower in the woods to save your life. How can you ask me to look out of the window into such a world as that?"

"Fire Brand," said I, "come and sit down."

Sun Will Shine

Then we made up a foolish little crackling fire in last Winter's grate, with some shavings and kindlings and things, and a few old letters that ought never to have been written, and a few new ones that should never have been read, and programmes and invitation cards and requests to join this and that and the other society, and, taken all together, they made quite a pleasant, friendly little blaze, just enough to take the dampness out of the room and not enough to make it too warm.

Then we had a comforting cup of tea and some little cakes with a raisin in the middle of each of them, made according to the recipe of an ancient person who got the rule from her own grandmother.

And when we had a cake or two and a cup of tea apiece, I said:

"Fire Brand, tell me this, what would you do if you thought it was always going to be like this outdoors?"

Fire Brand gasped. "Well," she said, "I don't know whether I would choose cyanide, a pistol or morphine. One or the other would have to do it. I wouldn't live, that's all. I simply wouldn't live!"

"So it's your knowledge that the sun has shone once and will shine again that is keeping you up, Fire Brand?" said I.

"It certainly is," said Fire Brand, relaxing a bit and stretching out her feet to the fender—such little feet Fire Brand has, and such a very neat ankle. I don't wonder she's a bit fussy in the matter of shoes.

"Well, then," said I, "that's how it is with religion. Don't you see? If we knew things were always going to be as they sometimes are, we could never live and bear it.

"We have to remember back and hope forward.

You Must Know

"We have to know that the sun shone yesterday, and perhaps tomorrow it will shine again. We have to think of the way the flowers smell when the sun does come out, and how the birds are going to sing, and how many little blue eggs there will be in the robin's nest on the porch when this rain makes up its mind to stop.

"And that's how we live through the storms."

"Oh," said Fire Brand, "but"——

"Just stop with 'OH,' Fire Brand," said I. "You can't reason about it. You can't argue about it. You have just got to know, that's all, just as I know the sun is going to shine some time, no matter how black the clouds are now. And neither you nor all the Fire Brands in the world are going to take away the comfort of my knowing it, just to give you a glorious time, Fire Brand."

SOUND WAVES FREAKS ON HUMAN EARS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"A and B, both hard-of-hearing units, were discussing why they hear better in noisy places. A says it is because we instinctively raise our voices, while B, being acquainted with physics, attributes it to the fact that the sound waves are magnified, or increased in places where the air is in commotion. Who is nearer the truth?"—N. B.

BEING myself a "hard-of-hearing unit" (a terse explanatory phrase with a right dash of humor, for which all deaf people ought to thank you), I take pleasure in giving you the result of my cogitation on this rather puzzling subject, which I fear is becoming personally interesting to a constantly widening circle of ordinary human units.

When the air is shaken with a large variety of conflicting noises it is true, as "A" says, that we instinctively give greater force to our voices. The effect is to make the spoken words stand out more distinctly from the hubbub. The importance of the part which this plays in enabling the partially deaf person to hear better in a noisy place is illustrated by the immediate dropping of the speaker's voice when the distracting noises cease, as, for instance, when a car comes to a standstill. You may have been hearing what your friend was saying perfectly well while the train was in motion, but the instant it stops he drops his voice and you have to strain to hear him at all, this being particularly noticeable in a railroad or a subway train.

How It Works

The speaker raises his voice because his own ears are filled with conflicting noises, many of which (and this is an important point to notice) are not audible to the hard-of-hearing listener. But the latter, when he replies, generally fails to speak loud enough, for the very reason just mentioned, viz., that he is not fully aware as is the other of the existence of interfering sounds.

You will find that people who are extremely deaf often become almost inaudible in their speech because they hear virtually no noise around them, and so utter their words with the slight force that is employed by persons of perfect hearing only when speaking in a very quiet place. It is very important for those whose hearing is beginning to fail to note carefully the measure of force required to make their voices clearly audible in varying circumstances. By taking this precaution public speakers who are partially deaf may speak as loudly and distinctly and in as good tones as if their hearing were perfect.

As to "B's" contention, based on his acquaintance with physics, that the sounds of the voice are "magnified or increased in places where the air is in commotion," I fear that his knowledge of physics is a trifle confused. Interfering sound waves may either reinforce or neutralize one another, according to the phase in which their encounters take place, but it cannot be said that in general such interference magnifies or increases the sounds any more than it decreases them.

A Confused Noise

The practical effect when sound waves of various lengths and intensities, and coming from many different sources, strike the eardrum is a confused noise, and if any particular sound stands out with special distinctness the effect is due to the greater original force and continuity of that sound. The chance of a voice receiving a constant reinforcement from other sound waves vibrating in a confused medley of noises is infinitely small.

A striking example of the analysis of a heterogeneous mass of sound that can be effected by an imperfect or abnormal ear may be found by riding in a noisy automobile, where a partially deaf person often distinguishes certain sounds that stand out clearly for him, although they are unnoticed by his companions who possess normal hearing. Mr. Edison's well-known ability to detect misrelated sounds in a phonograph, which escape the ears of persons of perfect hearing, is another case in point.
